Voters' league concentrates on recruiting new members

The League of Women Voters has chosen September as their month to tell citizens about the importance of voting.

Last week Gov. Charles Thone declared the month of September the Nebraska League of Women Voters month. Today Mayor Helen Boosalis will do the same for the Lincoln-Lancaster League.

During September, the League at its national, state and local levels will concentrate on recruiting new members, said Marlyn Logan, president of the Lincoln-Lancaster League.

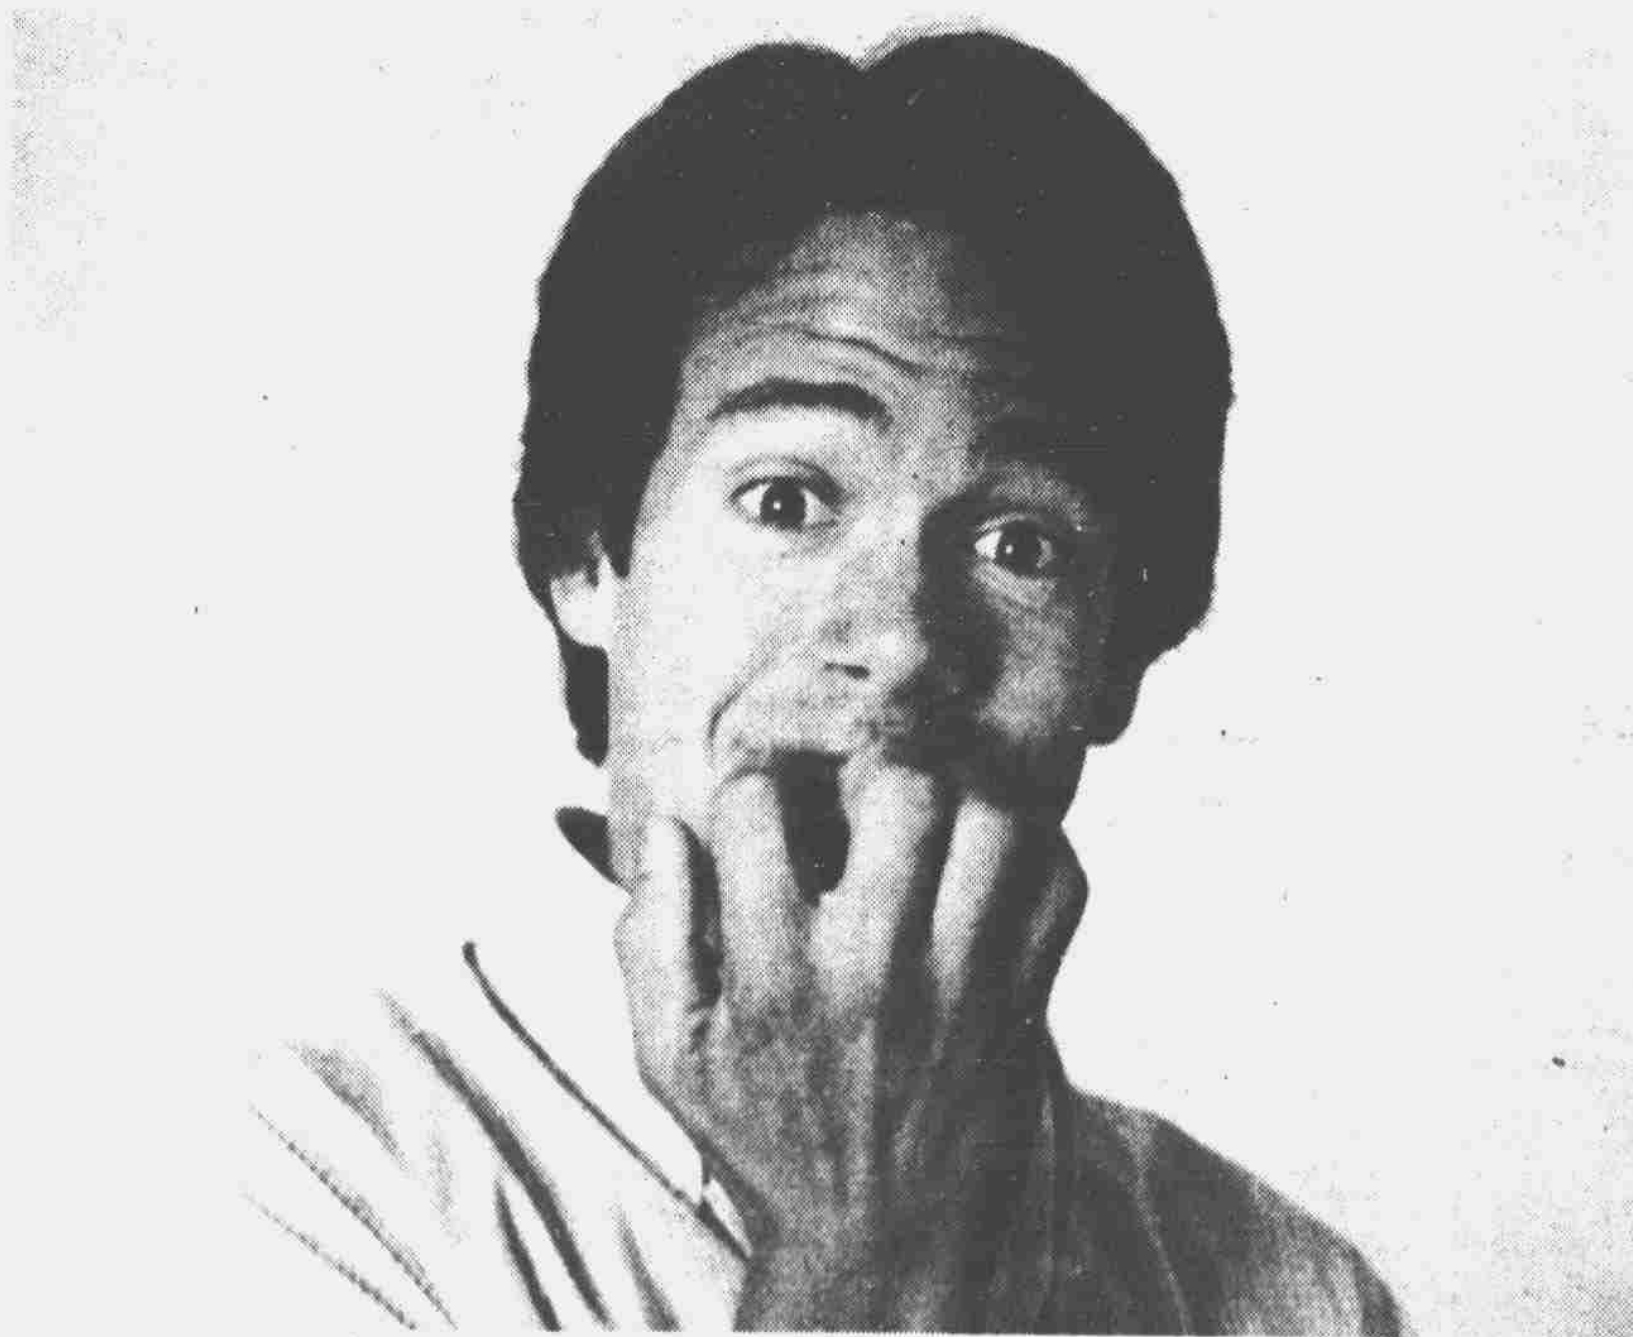

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan group that promotes active participation by informed citizens at all levels of government. The group studies national, state and local issues and then tries to educate the public on all aspects of the issues, Logan said.

According to Mayor Boosalis, the League plays an important role in promoting good, responsible government because members are "willing to dig, and dig deeply, into the issues. And after they're done digging, they inform people of what they've found."

Logan, who also is the Voter Service Director for the state League, said that the League grew out of the women's suffrage movement of the early 1900s. After women were allowed to vote, all the women's suffrage groups combined to form the League of Women Voters.

The League is striving to recruit more men as members, she said, since its purpose is to educate all voters, not just women. But the group's name is an inherent deterrent to attracting male members, she said.

Arson big at UNL during '81

Arson is big for the Big Red.

According to the Uniform Crime Report for 1981, UNL had the second-highest occurrence of arson in the Big Eight, with 16 cases of arson reported to UNL police.

The cases of arson ranged from lit materials thrown down garbage chutes in residence-halls to an incident when someone tried to ignite a stack of books in Love Library.

Lt. John Burke of the UNL Police Department said people who commit arson usually don't realize the consequences of their actions.

Burke said pyromania, an irrestable urge to start fires, and revenge are often the causes of arson, but negligence also starts fires.

UNL Police spokesman Bob Fey said arson figures fluctuate from year to year, as do all the UCR statistics, and this report's high arson figure does not necessarily indicate a trend.

Fey said the only crime listed in the UCR that decreased at UNL was burglary. There were 120 cases of burglary in 1980 compared to 105 in 1981, he said.
