

The Bottom 10: All for one and one win for all

The Colleges

When Virginia took a 17-14 lead over James Madison in the fourth quarter Saturday, its overexuberant fans began to chant, "Bring on Washington and Jefferson!" Well, Lincoln maybe - Lincoln High School, that is.

For Madison, which usually wins about every four years, rallied to cave in the winless Cavaliers 21-17, dropping them to No. 1 in the Bottom 10.

Hence, the Cavs are off and staggering toward their 28th losing season in 30 years. The week before, by coming up short against Navy in their openers, they enabled George Welsh to become the fifth straight Virginia coach to lose his debut.

Of course, the Cavs have been decimated this year by the return of 47 lettermen from 1981's 1-10 crew. Now you can see why West Virginia broke away to form its own state.

Quote Book: A Texas ASM alumnus, referring to new coach Jackie Sherrill's contract after the school's opening-game loss: "It's that damned inflation. A million dollars just doesn't buy what it used to."

The Pros

Obviously, the Los Angeles Lambs were determined not to blow another big lead. So instead of going out in front 23-0 and losing - as they did against Green Bay - they built up an 0-16 deficit against Detroit and coasted to a 14-19 defeat.

With the players' strike on for Ed-Garvey-knows-how-long, the Lambs may have clinched The Bottom 10 title on the earliest date in history. (The now-defunct Louisville Brecks hold the current record, having posted an 0-3 record in 1922 under their unforgettable coach, Hubert Wiggs.) The Lambs fans, who met at midfield before the game and shook hands, booed the team lustily. Some called for an appearance by the Lambs' strike-breaking team that reportedly held a secret workout in Santa Ana earlier in the week.

Elsewhere, Buffalo's Joe Cribbs, a season-long hold-out, announced he had formed his own union, the Joe Cribbs Players Association (no dues).

And ABC said it would begin showing Howard Cosell's old variety show on Monday nights. But don't worry, Cosell critics. Hank Stram and Jack Buck will handle the radio version.

*No defending Super Bowl champion has ever gone winless the next year.

Crummy Game (and/or Rout) of the Week: Toronto vs. British Columbia (Canadian football).

Special Citation: After the dancing Bears were hit with many illegal procedure penalties in their opener, rookie coach Mike Ditka promised to "simplify the offense." He did. The Bears were shut out 0-10.
