Nebraska second-string quarterback Bruce Mathison (19) heads down the left side of the field for a 16-yard touch-down run that sealed Nebraska's 23-19 come-from-behind win against the Missouri Tigers Saturday in Memorial Stadium. Mathison earned praise from Husker Coach Tom Osborne for his performance Saturday after being forced into action because of an injury to Turner Gill.

It took the Oklahoma volleyball team seven hours to get to Lincoln for Saturday's Big Eight conference match at the UNL Coliseum. It took Nebraska less than 50 minutes to dispatch the Sooners in straight sets.

Nebraska's 15-5, 15-6, 15-6 victory gave the Huskers their fifth Big Eight win in six tries.

"I think we kind of unnerved them with our serving," Husker Coach Terry Pettit said. The win unofficially gave Pettit his 200th coaching victory.

"We haven't played anyone for two weeks, and I think they were anxious to get out there," he said. "Oklahoma didn't get set up too well, while we were playing real well. When we play well like that, we can play with anybody."

The 13th-ranked Huskers improved their overall record to 19-4.

Oklahoma Coach Miles Pabst agreed that Nebraska's accurate serving doomed his Sooners.

"Nebraska served extremely well, and we couldn't pass at all," Pabst said. Pabst said the Sooners' inability to pass and put pressure on Nebraska's defense made the difference between this match and the first Nebraska-Oklahoma match, a four-set Nebraska win.

"We were probably a little tired from last night, but Nebraska was very sharp today," Pabst said. The Sooners, now 2-5 in the conference and 8-12 overall, lost in five sets to Kansas State Friday night.

"Nebraska also had that two-week rest, which has to be real nice," Pabst added.

Pettit said he had hoped the Sooners would give Nebraska a better match so he could give other team members more playing time.

"I had wanted to give Debbie Thompson and Sallye Ramsey more playing time," Pettit said.
