would be admitted into the brotherhood of the trident and null sign. In short order, its secrets would be exposed, the scam would be exploded sky-high, and the Psi Phi scum would spend the rests of their miserable, worthless lives being beaten and bugged behind bars.

When he saw on the computer screen that Operation Pus Pocket had been reclassified top priority, he envisioned a dazzling future of double-dealing in the Kremlin.

But the swollen dream burst as he read on. A task force of top G-men was taking over the assignment. King was to meet his superior, code-named the Screw, for re-appointment.

King let himself out with a pick, leaped his moped and furiously sped to the nearby 7-Eleven.

He waited in line while an old drunk, pleading, "Buh ith Chrithmush," haggled about getting dollar change back from the Penthouse he was attempting to buy with food stamps. The drunk failed in stride and cordially stumbled away, wishing everyone a merry Chrithmush.

"I called about a case of canned mince-meat," King said.

"Let's check inventory," the bald man behind the counter, the Screw, replied in code. He barked to a smocked kid in the aisle. "Paraiso! Mind the register." Before leading King into the storeroom, he flicked on the popcorn popper, lest any bugs were listening in.

King briefly stated his case. He stood at attention and gave no ground.

"Commander, sir! I shall have the man to you, sir! I swear on God, the president and all things right that that squirming worm is a rotten apple who, pushed, will spoil the batch, sir! I can upset the apple cart and have the monkeys in this hurdy-gurdy over a barrel in jig time, sir!"

"Agent King. Pursuant to my aforementioned mentioning of the not insubstantial presence of absence of clean dirt on the alleged participants in the so-called Psi Phi fraternity house, I am behooved to behold the breach of command you broach as emblematic of the self-aggrandizing, glory-mongering mock heroic behavior augmental to the discontinuous abfunctioning of heedful schema. Do understand. Imperatives disallow aberration."

"Permission, sir! I attest I shan't jump the gun. I propose to set them up like sitting ducks and blast them point-blank, sir!"

"Cadet. Precipitance and propinquity necessitate the forthwith and immediate debriefing of your intelligence of and with regard to Operation Pus Pocket. Herewith you are duly accorded and furthermore encharged with the over-look and superseeing of Covert Activity 9F10002A-8666-C-5, code-named and hereafter referred to as Operation Snow Blower. By fiat and caveat of said fixture, the operative-designate is enjoined to trail, monitor and otherwise surveil the actions and industries of two supposed narcotics racketeers and believed under-world major domos, one Nash Rambler, one Duncan Drumm, code-named and hereafter referred to as Yogi and Boo Boo."

Record rentals

Bohart renovated his small shop, including laying in new flooring from a 19th-century house. He said he intends to stick with the record operation.

"I'm not going anywhere," he said. However, Rodney Dean Ferguson, co-owner of Lincoln's Pickles stores, was skeptical about Bohart's enterprise. "There are too many things against them," he said about record rental stores. "The law is against them, seven large manufacturers hate their guts and manufacturers have plans to release new music on chromium tapes."

Ferguson said prices on albums are dropping and, accordingly, renting a record won't be economically feasible. Bohart said manufacturers are already sensitive about rental stores.
