

Comedy Shoppe

Both skits were well received by the crowd, which was, at times, large and always enthusiastic.

Benson said crowd reaction was "mucho importante."

"We rehash it all and see what worked and what didn't," he said. "If something doesn't go over we'll usually take it out. But a lot depends on what kind of an audience you have, too."

The Comedy Shoppe fills a need on the local entertainment scene, Benson said.

Benson said performers or groups wanting to participate in the next Comedy Shoppe should contact him or Larry Boehmer.

"We'd love to have some new people," he said.

Benson summed up his group with this statement: "We're the funniest people in the city of Lincoln and probably the state of Nebraska . . . and the Midwest . . . maybe the United States . . . OK, the world."

KZUM . . .

Stoughton said KZUM's hours will be expanded for the marathon.

Stoughton said KZUM was at a critical point in its history.

"This is a crucial time for us," he said. "We're trying to be as optimistic as we can but, with the economy the way it is, things are getting tight."

KZUM has also lost its federal funding, Stoughton said.

"We're trying to get some grants," he said, "but right now we're operating almost entirely from contributions. It's hard to keep operating that way."

Stoughton said it was hard to get a wide base of support for KZUM because, with only 10 watts of power, not everyone can pick it up.

"We're trying to get a translator which would pick up the signal and send it along and increase the number of people who can hear us," he said. "The chances for that look pretty favorable."
