

Summer tour plan includes visits to 5 European countries

By Tish Mockler

You don't have to be fluent in French or Spanish or even know a word of either language to participate in a 28-day Comparative Culture Tour in Europe this summer.

Commencing July 5, the trip begins in New York. Tour participants will then travel to Madrid and Barcelona, Spain; Carcassonne, Nimes, Paris and the French Riviera in France; Assisi, Florence, Pisa, Rome and Venice, Italy; Lucerne, Switzerland and London, England.

The tour, sponsored by the American Leadership Study Groups and open to high school and college students, will be led by Rolland and Mary Jean Gast, who are both high school teachers in the Lincoln Public Schools. Couriers with an European university background and careers in education will lead the tour in Europe.

Mrs. Gast said the major purpose of the trip is to inspire learning about the art, history and culture of Europe and to broaden general knowledge.

The Gasts led their first tour in the summer of 1980 when a company contacted them about it. They agreed to lead the tour because they had free time in the summer and believed they would enjoy doing it. They gave a similar tour the next summer. Several companies asked them to lead tours after that and they chose the American Leadership Study Group's plan for this summer.

The cost of the trip is $2,169, which covers all travel expenses except for optional field trips and transportation to the New York airport (round trip about $200). Hotel costs, breakfast, dinner, seven lunches, sightseeing and entertainment are included in the fee.

Participants can earn up to five hours of transferable college credit from California State University at Sacramento and San Francisco State University by preparing a study proposal before the trip and submitting a project report upon their return home. Interested people can write to the American Leadership Study Group for details at Airport Drive, Worcester, Mass. 01602, or call the Gasts. The approximate deadline for applying for the trip is mid-March. Gast said they hope to get about 45 students to participate.

Sooner Or Later You'll Get Responsibility Like This. In The Navy It's Sooner.

You're maneuvering 445 feet of guided missile frigate through the navigational hazards and non-stop traffic of one of the world's busiest ports. But you'll dock safely. Because you know your equipment. You know your men. And even when the responsibility weighs in at 3,600 tons... you're ready.

After 4 years of college, you're ready for more responsibility than most civilian jobs offer. Navy officers get the kind of job and responsibility they want, and they get it sooner.

Navy officers are part of the management team after 16 weeks. Instead of boot camp, officer candidates receive four months of leadership training. It's professional schooling designed to sharpen their technical and management skills.

Then, in their first assignment, Navy officers get management experience that could take years in private industry. And they earn the decision-making authority it takes to make that responsibility pay off.

As their management abilities grow, Navy officers can take advantage of advanced education and training in fields as varied as operations management, electronics, and systems analysis. In graduate school it would cost you thousands; in the Navy we pay you.

And the Navy pays well. The starting salary is $17,000 (more than most companies pay). And that's on top of a comprehensive benefits program that can include special duty pay. After four years, with regular promotions and pay increases, the salary is up to as much as $31,000.

If you qualify to be an officer in the Navy, chances are you have what it takes to succeed. The Navy just makes it happen faster.
