Boxers fall in Golden Gloves

By Chris Welsch

After winning five fights Friday night, the UNL boxing team saw their championship hopes go up in smoke Saturday at the 50th Midwest Golden Gloves boxing tournament in Omaha.

"We clutched," Coach Randy Nelsen said.

All four UNL boxers who traveled to the tournament lost their fights, although Felix Konat won his first bout against Mark Robinson of Hastings in the 165-pound class semifinal.

Konat then lost a third-round decision to Stan Smith of Omaha.

Smith had an advantage in height and experience, Nelsen said. The fight was close and both boxers sustained injuries, he said.

Marc Grimminger lost a decision to Mike Donahuy at Hastings in the 178-pound semifinal. Donahuy went on to win the Midwest championship.

John Krolkowski lost his fight with Marlon Thomas of Omaha in the heavy-weight division. The referee called the fight in the second round.

Carl Von Rein lost a decision to William Hill of Omaha in the super-heavyweight championship bout.

Hill had a distinct height advantage over Von Rein, Nelsen said. Hill's left jabs scored the points that won the fight. Von Rein couldn't get inside to score the points he needed.

In one of Friday's fights, Konat battered Eli Martinez until the referee stopped the contest 2:39 into the second round. Martinez injured his right arm and his trainer threw in the towel.

The match between Grimminger and Joe Escamilla in the 178-pound weight class also was called because of injury. Grimminger dominated the first round. He was aggressive and was scoring punches. At 23 seconds into the round, Escamilla grabbed his arm in pain and the referee called the match in favor of Grimminger.

Von Rein destroyed both of his opponents Friday night. Von Rein did not have any fights during the regular season; no one could be found to get into the ring with him. Although he said he had some apprehensions about fighting in front of a crowd, his boxing tactics were impeccable.

In Von Rein's first match, he knocked Rick Eberhardt of Grand Island down twice. Von Rein seemed cautious; he didn't throw very many punches, but the ones he did throw usually hit the mark. The referee gave Eberhardt four standing eight counts before he called the fight, 2:34 into the first round.

Von Rein's second opponent, Robert Starr, showed more pugilistic finesse than Eberhardt, but couldn't overcome Von Rein's power. Starr was given two standing eight counts in the first round after sustaining blows from Von Rein. He barely made it through the second round and the referee called the contest 1:37 into the third round after Von Rein landed a massive blow to Starr's chest.
