

Committee drafts parking information

By Peggy Polacek

Discussion, but no action, took place because of the absence of a quorum at the Parking Advisory Committee meeting Tuesday.

A rough draft of parking information for new students was distributed to the committee members. The information asks students to think about the need for a car on campus and also gives general information about parking permits.

It warns that "parking permits are issued on a first-come first-serve basis," and students will probably have to walk a few blocks to classes even if they purchase a permit.

The information will be distributed through New Student Orientation, the Student Handbook, housing's pamphlet and possibly with car registration information.

Clinton Hoover, director of the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education Division of Continuing Studies and a committee member, said the information promotes the idea that a car is not necessary on campus.

An unwritten exception of free parking permits for coaches also was discussed. The cost of maintaining the 45 stalls in Area 7 costs about $12 per stall, which amounts to more than $500, said Kenneth Markle, captain of UNL parking administration. Enforcement of the parking permits requires about an hour of an officer's time.

Markle said that when the policy began and in its early years, three or four coaches received the free permits. Now about 40 or 50 coaches or assistants receive permits, Markle said.

Students' complaints about car towings could be prevented if students would call and find out if they have any unpaid tickets, Markle said. Two or more unpaid tickets may cause a car to be towed, and the files are getting fatter with the unpaid bills.

Harlan Milder, a freshman law major, said that a uniformity of ticketing was needed in parking areas. He said he was ticketed in an area on East Campus, and when he went to another area, illegally parked cars were not ticketed there.

Markle said the department has been short on workers all winter, and often tickets are given on "spot checks."

Milder's complaint that East Campus lots are less ticketed was not acted on because of the absence of a quorum.

The next meeting of the Parking Advisory Committee will be April 5 at 2:30 p.m. at the UNL Police Department. Items to have been acted on Tuesday will be rescheduled for this meeting. Changes in parking regulations, information on the committee's role in the appeals process and proposal's on night enforcement, permit fees, Area 7 parking for coaches, and raising meter rates will be discussed.
