

Red Cross blood drive at East and City campuses

By Thom Gabrukiewicz

Everyone knows that blood is the mainstay of human life. When a person is injured and needs a vital blood transfusion, the American Red Cross steps in to help.

Beginning Tuesday on East Campus and continuing today and Thursday in the Nebraska Union, the American Red Cross blood drive is in full swing.

"This is the first time we've been on East Campus," she said. "We are really excited to be here and working with Agronomy Club," said Carole Shafer, president of the Campus Red Cross.

Shafer said she expected about 150 units of blood to come from East Campus, but she could not speculate on the total number of units that could be collected.

The American Red Cross expects to collect 225 units of blood today and 275 units Thursday on City Campus, Shafer said. The figures were reached by the number of units collected from campus blood drives in the past.

All blood collected in this and all Midwest blood drives stays in the Midwest, Shafer said. Two organizations will be using the blood collected in this drive.

The Lincoln Community Blood Bank of the Lancaster County Medical Society, which serves Lancaster and Seward counties, and the Midwest Region Blood services, which serves 105 hospitals in Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas, are the organizations involved in this drive, Shafer said.

If a student or anyone interested in giving blood does not have an appointment, Shafer said no such appointment was necessary.

"People without an appointment can just walk in," she said. "That would be great."

The bloodmobile will be at City Campus today and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Union Centennial Ballroom.
