

Sue Tidball Award recipient to be announced Saturday

The 1983 recipient of the second annual Sue Tidball Award for Creative Humanity will be announced Saturday at 8 p.m. at St. Mark's Episcopal Church and Student Center, 1309 R St.

Six chosen nominees for the award were judged by a selection committee set up by United Ministries in Higher Education on the basis of their involvement in the community and with UNL, said John Breckenridge, associate director of UNL's counseling center.

"The winner was selected on how nearly he or she reflects the set criteria, such as involvement with UNL or membership in diverse groups," Breckenridge said.

The award originated last year as a way to honor people in the UNL community who have made significant contributions to the development of humane, educationally creative and just community on the UNL campus. The award is named in honor of Sue Tidball, who was a counselor and resource consultant with Commonplace-UMHE when she died in 1976.

Nominees for the 1983 award include Rowena Boykin, retired coordinator of International Educational Services; Marcee Metzger, student and former coordinator of the Women's Resource Center; Don Payne, assistant director of Admissions and Advising; Patty Plotnick, media production specialist at the Barkley Center; Dolores Simpson-Kirkland, assistant to the Dean of Students, and Vernon Williams, director of the Counseling Center.

The winner will have his or her name engraved on the plaque displayed in the UMHE office, and will receive a certificate and a small honorarium, Breckenridge said.
