

Police Report

Two thefts in Sandoz Hall, totaling $60 cash, could have been prevented by locking the doors to the rooms, said Crime Prevention Officer Robert Fey of the UNL police.

The following incidents were reported to the campus police between 7 a.m. and 11:41 p.m. Sunday:

4:01 p.m. — A citation for careless driving was issued after the driver of a northbound car in Parking Area 1 hit a parked car.

10:50 p.m. — $50 in cash reported stolen from a jewelry box on the seventh floor of Sandoz Hall. The door was unlocked and the room unoccupied when the burglary occurred.

10:50 p.m. — Burglary reported on the seventh floor of Sandoz Hall; $10 cash was taken from a footlocker. The door of the room was shut but unlocked.

All Nebraska law enforcement officers are required to take a polygraph test when applying for a position. However, this test is only mandatory for law enforcement officers. Legislative Bill 485, approved in 1980, states that any examiner's license can be revoked if the subject to be examined is not informed that participation is voluntary.

The Licensing of Truth and Deception Act also states that a subject cannot be questioned about "religious or political affiliations, sexual practices, or marital relationships, except when such questions have a bearing on the areas or issues under examination."

UNL also has a polygraph machine, used for interviews for the UNL Police Department. Investigator Bob Fey, who is charge of polygraph tests, said the device is a useful tool in screening police officers and conducting criminal investigations.

The lie detector isn't necessarily used to determine guilt, he said, but is used to focus on an investigation. More people find the test useful in attempting to prove their innocence, Fey said.

The lie detector test has been considered by some as an invasion of privacy, and the accuracy of polygraph results has been disputed.

However, Investigator Fey and detective Tussing said the machine was accurate more than 95 percent of the time. Fey and Tussing expressed confidence in the polygraph test and said they have found the polygraph indispensable in their investigations.

Polygraph interviewers are expected to have valid certification from an accredited school and must have a state license.
