Group home project breaks ground

By Mary Louise Knapp

Construction of 10 group homes for mentally retarded citizens in Lincoln officially began Thursday afternoon with a ground-breaking ceremony at the site of one home.

The group homes are a project of the Association for Retarded Citizens Housing Development Corporation of Lincoln. The project is funded by direct loans from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Lincoln Mayor Roland Luedtke, one of the speakers at the ceremony at 39th and L streets, said the group home project exemplifies ideals he supports. "The (mentally retarded) individual is not isolated, but active and integrated with society" as a result of the group home plans, he said.

"It is another example of public and private ownership," Luedtke said. He said the project is one of the largest of its kind in the country.

Rep. Douglas Bereuter of the 1st Congressional District also spoke at the ceremony. He said the group homes represent a "new community commitment" to Lincoln's mentally retarded citizens. The homes will help the mentally retarded in their "personal realization of the American dream," Bereuter said.

Another elected official, Lt. Gov. Donald McGinley, said the need for homes other than institutions for the mentally retarded is beginning to be realized.

The group homes will be managed by the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation. The LOMR office will determine who will live in each house and will maintain the homes. It also will hire, train and supervise staff and will work to develop good relations with neighbors.

Five people will live in each house with a house parent or house parent couple.

A fact sheet published by the ARC Housing Development Corporation of Lincoln said each house will have enough space for private bedrooms for each LOMR client and each resident house parent. Each house will have a kitchen, living room and family room and will be accessible for the handicapped.

Construction costs of each house will range from $92,000 to $103,000.
