Two groups in PLO demand reforms

DAMASCUS, Syria — Two radical Palestinian groups Sunday demanded basic reforms in the Palestine Liberation Organization similar to those sought by rebels within PLO chief Yasser Arafat's mainstream guerrilla group, Fatah. At a press conference in Damascus, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine announced their demands for an all-out struggle against Israel, a purge against corruption and no dealings with any peace plan. The proposals marked the first time the radical groups had given active support to the mood of discontent. A revolt against Arafat within Fatah, the largest of the eight factions making up the PLO, surfaced publicly in May.

Five ships escape Arctic ice

MOSCOW — Icebreakers have freed five Soviet ships from the frozen water north of Siberia, but about 22 others remain icebound, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Sunday. It said three icebreakers forced a passage through the Frozen Chukotsk Sea to rescue the freighter Kolya Nyagotin, which was punctured by the ice and was partly flooded. Tass said the icebreakers escorted two other ships to open water before returning to help the cargo vessels still trapped. Other icebreakers released two more ships from another section of the Chukotsk Sea. The trapped ships are part of a fleet that runs a service along the north Siberian coast, bringing goods to remote towns.

Glenn skips film premiere

WASHINGTON — A celebrity crowd turned out Sunday night for the world premiere of "The Right Stuff," the astronaut movie that John Glenn's opponents fear may have a booster-rocket effect on his presidential campaign. Ex-astronaut Glenn, a Democratic senator from Ohio and a leading candidate for his party's presidential nomination, did not attend. Earlier this year he criticized the film for portraying him as a "preaching Presbyterian prude." Four of the seven original U.S. astronauts portrayed in the film attended.

Reagan picks McFarlane

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has chosen Middle East negotiator Robert McFarlane as White House national security affairs adviser to replace William Clark, administration officials said Sunday night. Clark was named last week as interior secretary after James Watt resigned from the Cabinet. McFarlane, 45, returned to Washington last week after helping to negotiate the fragile truce among warring factions in Lebanon. He conferred with Reagan on Friday, the day after Clark was named to succeed Watt. Officials said they did not know who would succeed McFarlane as Middle East envoy.

Churches march for peace

BONN, West Germany — Church organizations held nationwide services and marches for peace Sunday as West Germany's 10-day campaign of mass protest against the planned deployment of new U.S. missiles in Europe moved into its fourth day. Police said most of the meetings were small and peaceful with no repetition of Saturday night's violence in the northern port of Bremerhaven, where police clashed with demonstrators. The biggest rally Sunday was at Juelich, near Cologne, where more than 20,000 people took part in an open-air service followed by a peace march.

Marine dies in Lebanon

BEIRUT — One U.S. Marine was killed and three were injured in machine-gun and rocket-propelled grenade attacks on their positions around Beirut airport Sunday, a U.S. military spokesman said. Maj. Robert Jordan said the Marine, who died of wounds to the head, is the sixth U.S. serviceman to die in Lebanon since the Marines came to Beirut about a year ago as part of a four-nation peace keeping force.
