

Conference to focus on alternative careers

Finding alternative careers for UNL arts and sciences graduates and faculty members may be difficult, but a January conference will try to make looking for a job easier.

The conference is designed to help people looking for jobs in fields different from the ones they received degrees in, said Dan Wheeler, faculty career consultant.

"The conference is for both faculty and graduates in the arts and sciences college," Wheeler said. "It will give people a basic planning process. It will tell them how to plan for a career."

The conference is at the East Union on Jan. 13 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"The conference will be a combination of a small group discussion and also some formal presentations," Wheeler said. "The sessions will be getting into a problem-solving mode. It will also go into a particular career planning strategy."

"We need to build a sense of a group feeling, that they are not alone," he said. "There are a lot needing to make decisions, we hope to help," he said.

The registration deadline for the conference is Nov. 30. For more information, contact Dan Wheeler, 472-2063; Esther Cope, 472-2414; or Nelson Potter, 472-2425.

Staff photo by Craig Andreen

A Diamond worth waiting for

Even though it's not exactly a hot August night, these die-hard Neil Diamond fans don't see anything wrong with staying out in the cold to get good seats for the show. The multifaceted performer will be in Lincoln on Dec. 12.

RIDE THE RED.

KILLIAN'S RED

Camera . . .

Continued from Page 1

The stricter alcohol policy created a noticeable difference in crowd behavior, he said. After the first game or two when coolers and jugs were searched, the amount of alcohol brought into the stadium was reduced to a minimum, he said.

Both UNL and Lincoln police stepped up enforcement of laws prohibiting the sale of memorabilia and tickets on campus and city property without permits.

Fey said several people were arrested for selling items on campus property.

Checking vendors for permits cut down on unauthorized vendors competing with authorized vendors, and was a way to follow up on ticket theft cases, Fey said. People who steal football tickets often try to sell them at the games, he said.

Lt. Joe Wehner of the UNL police department said campus police had never arrested unauthorized vendors before this season.

Although he had no specific number of arrests Tuesday, he said several were made.

"We feel it greatly solved our problem (with unauthorized vendors)," he said. "As far as I know there were none (arrested) at the last game."

Evil . . .

Continued from Page 1

Ortega y Gasset's works encompass a wide variety of subjects.

His most important works in English translation are "Meditations on Quijote" (1914), "The Spectator" (eight volumes between 1916 and 1934) "Spain Invertebrate" (1921), "The Subject of Our Times" (1923), "Kant" (1924), "The Dehumanization of Art" (1928), "The Mission of the University" (1930), "Studies on Love" (1940) and "History as a System" (1940).