In a page-one story in Tuesday's Daily Nebraskan about Saturday's march in Washington, D.C., to protest U.S. involvement in Central America, Marcus Holder was misquoted as saying that more than 20,000 people participated in the march. Holder, a member of the local Latin America Solidarity Committee, that was in Washington, said that more than 40,000 people marched. Washington police estimates put the crowd at 20,000.

Quake rocks Hawaii; few injuries reported

HILO, Hawaii — An earthquake measuring 6.7 on the Richter Scale shook Hawaii Island Wednesday, causing landslides, bringing down power and telephone lines and smashing windows, police said. But despite the intensity of the earthquake — strong enough to cause severe damage in a heavily populated area — police said the only injuries reported were a few people cut by flying glass. Parts of Hilo, the main town on the island — the biggest in the Hawaiian group — were left without electricity.

Shock waves from the 45-second quake were felt as far away as Honolulu, 250 miles northwest of Hilo. Seismologists on the island placed the epicenter of the quake 21 miles below ground on the southeastern slope of Mauna Loa Volcano.

Nicaraguans dig trenches

MANAGUA — Tens of thousands of Nicaraguans Wednesday began digging air raid trenches as the country's parliament was told the United States planned an invasion "within the next few days." Civil defense officials supervising the digging in all major towns and cities said the trenches were designed against bomb attacks and strafing raids.

The chief of the army's political department, Hugo Torres, told Nicaragua's Council of State in an emergency session that "all the signs point to a direct invasion of Nicaragua by the United States in the next few days."

Fears of an invasion, heightened by last month's U.S. intervention in Grenada, were spurred by the arrival of 1,800 U.S. Marines in neighboring Honduras to take part in the biggest joint military exercises ever staged in Central America. The latest arrivals brought to more than 5,000 the number of U.S. ground troops in Honduras.

Anti-missile protests

LONDON — More than 60 anti-nuclear protesters were arrested Wednesday in demonstrations here against the arrival of U.S. cruise missiles in Britain, police said. More than 300 people were arrested for blocking access to the House of Commons Tuesday night and scores of police were on duty Wednesday night to prevent a repetition of the incident.

Earlier, 24 women protesters were arrested when they tried to blockade the main gates at the Greenham Common air base, where medium-range cruise missiles are being placed. The missiles, first of 572 nuclear missiles NATO plans to deploy in Western Europe, began arriving Monday at the base, 50 miles west of London.

Arafat's stronghold falls

TRIPOLI, Lebanon — Syrian-backed Palestinian rebels Wednesday captured PLO leader Yasser Arafat's last stronghold in Lebanon, forcing his fighters to take refuge in the port city of Tripoli. In central Tripoli, Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization press office insisted that all rebel advances had been repulsed and said heavy fighting continued "on the doorsteps" of the Baddawi refugee camp.

Ginny Foat acquitted

NEW ORLEANS — Former California feminist leader Ginny Foat Wednesday was acquitted of the 1965 murder of an Argentine businessman that her ex-husband claimed the couple committed. The jury deliberated for more than two hours before returning a verdict.

Foat testified Monday and Tuesday that her life with ex-husband John Sidote was one of torment and near-constant beatings. She tearfully denied being part of any killing. Sidote, the third of her four ex-husbands, had said he and Foat beat Moises Chayo to death 18 years ago.
