Editorial Policy

Unsigned editorials represent official policy of the fall 1983 Daily Nebraskan. They are written by this semester's editor in chief, Larry Sparks.

Other staff members will write editorials throughout the semester. They will carry the author's name after the final sentence.

We need groups of 3-7 students to form a delegation and familiarize themselves with a nation's policies and preferences to represent that country both in formal debate and in informal negotiations. Join us for four fun days in February. For more information call 472-2454 or come to room 200 in the Nebraska Union.

Barker: Ha ha, all right, Colonel, keep your eyes peeled for this fabulous showcase. What have we got for the Colonel?

Announcer: Boob, we've got a steel bolt! (Applause.) It has a three-fourths-inch head and a shiny, slender 1-inch long body. It is marvelously threaded from top to bottom, with a gripping torque ratio vastly superior to those of Leggos and Tinkertoys combined. This little beauty can be yours, Colonel, if the prices are right!

Starchbritches: Uh, Boob, does that come with a nut?

Barker: No, Colonel; what you see is what you get.

Starchbritches: Roger, Boob. I'll say $1000.

Barker: Okay, let's get the prices up here. Showcase number one sells for $300,000. You've gone over by $800,000, General. (Scattered applause.)

Showcase number two sells for . . . 35 cents. You missed by $999.65, Colonel — not enough to win. General Longbottom, you have won! The choppers are yours!

Longbottom: Uh, thank you, Boob.

Barker: And thank you, Colonel, for being on our show.

Starchbritches: You're welcome, Boob. I shall return.

In Japan we maintain 24,000 Marines, 2,500 Army troops and a hundred-plus combat aircraft.

We have 40,000 American troops maintaining two Koreas.

We maintain a naval base in the Philippines with 5,000 sailors and 8,000 airmen.

Each of these commitments can be justified because each situation is potentially explosive.

But the question is how much of the world can American taxpayers carry on their shoulders before our own strength is depleted, our own nation in jeopardy.
