The Series: Nebraska leads the series 43-28. The teams split two games last season with Nebraska winning 77-68 in Lincoln and the Cowboys winning 71-63 in double overtime in Stillwater. Nebraska has not lost to the Cowboys in the Sports Center in nine games.

The Game: This game features teams headed in opposite directions. Oklahoma State has defeated Missouri, Colorado and Kansas State at home and lost to Oklahoma at Norman. The Cowboys are in second place in the conference behind league-leader Kansas. Nebraska has lost its last three games including a 60-57 loss to Colorado Saturday night in Boulder.

Nebraska Coach Moe Iba said Monday that Nebraska's lack of defensive pressure has allowed opponents to use bigger lineups against the Huskers.

"Oklahoma State's going to change their lineup and go with four big players," Iba said. "We've got to get more rebounding."

If Oklahoma State makes a change in its starting lineup, it will replace Self with 6-6 Charles Williams, giving them the four big players Iba talked about.

Iba said tonight's game with the Cowboys will tell him a lot about how the rest of the season will go for the Huskers.

"I think they (Nebraska's players) have to rise to the occasion or we're in trouble," Iba said. "I'm interested to see how our kids will react coming back home and playing."

The Game: Nebraska has won 10 of the 11 games between the two schools. The Huskers defeated the Cowgirls 96-75 and 101-89 last season. Oklahoma State is coming off a 90-78 upset of Missouri. Nebraska beat Colorado at Boulder and Wyoming at Laramie this past weekend.

"Oklahoma State has a very good team," Nebraska Coach Kelly Hill said. "They were never much of a challenger in the Big Eight until this season."

The major reason for the turnaround in the Cowgirl program is new Coach Dick Halterman. Halterman came to Stillwater from the head coaching job at Moberly (Mo.) Junior college. He brought three of his players from Moberly with him to Oklahoma State.

Hill said coming back to the Bob Devaney Sports Center will be nice after three consecutive road games.

"Hopefully it will give us an edge," Hill said.

Total institutions . . .

Not only does his attire differentiate him from those who are on the field or court, but his attire implies an intellectual and social type of superiority. Just as the warden or the hospital intern can freely wear those clothes which reflect social development and character (as well as the status of their jobs), the referee or judge is distinguished from those over who they too have power.

Furthermore, take note that many of those who sit in judgment of total institutions have never partaken in the social role of those over whom they sit in judgment. In like manner, the overwhelming majority of referees and judges have never played professional football, which differs in degree and type from its high school and/or collegiate manifestations.

The key similarity in all this is that in any total institution, the individual loses all control over and all responsibility for their lives. The realm of professional athletics in this light, is not comparable in terms of degree. But it is the nature and function of a thing that often determines its real role in society. And in this case, I contend that professional sports, particularly basketball and football, have a function that only serves to economically benefit a few while at the same time "entertaining" the many by having physically gifted athletes run, jump and dunk their lives away.

Total institutions are alienative, by their very nature and structure.

While it might still be debatable as to whether professional athletics are such institutions or not, I think that it is something that we should look into in the future. In doing so, sometimes we may be wrong. But many times, we will be right.

How Theta Chi Changed My Life.

AFTER

Before I joined Theta Chi I was old-fashioned in my dress and behavior. I was uncouth, unhappy, uncultured and unwanted. Girls ignored me. Even Commonwealth Savings wouldn't let me open a savings account, and that was over a year ago!

Several months ago I went through rush and liked what I saw at Theta Chi fraternity. At first, I didn't think I would fit in. But happily, they must have seen a potential in me, even I didn't know existed.

Today, thanks to Theta Chi, I'm looking forward to graduating magna cum laude, then becoming a well known trial attorney, supreme court justice and eventually president of the United States. Maybe I'll even play for the USFL.

Please excuse us for using this slightly exaggerated testimonial to get your attention, but we did it for a serious reason.

We wish to invite YOU to attend rush our spring semester. We truly believe Theta Chi Fraternity can become an important part of your education.

Call Scott Novak or Scott Mizek at 476-7893 and let us show you the people of Theta Chi.
