Intern learns, explains where the money goes

By Noreen Nilimi

Students may find textbook problems easy to solve, but actually applying that learning to the real world is a different story, a UNL consumer affairs major said.

Senior Barb Stefanski interns at the Consumer Credit Counseling Service, a non-profit organization. The principles learned through classwork, she said, are not easy to apply in real-life situations.

"For example," Stefanski said, "it's easy to say a family has to cut cigarettes out of its budget. But it's much harder to actually tell people that after you have seen them smoke four cigarettes in one hour in front of you."

Stefanski sits in on counseling sessions run by Sheree Atwood, manager of the Lincoln branch of the service at 3701 O St.

"We see people who are unemployed with no source of income as well as those earning $30,000 to $40,000," Atwood said. But the majority of clients are those who have over-extended their credit cards, she said.

UNL students with credit or money problems probably do not have good budgeting skills, Stefanski said.

"Most people just do not plan ahead," Atwood said. If they would plan ahead for what they want or need and put a little money away each month, most people would not end up with budgeting problems, she said.

"We counsel with the emphasis on helping the people to manage their money better," Atwood said.

Besides counseling, the service offers a debt repayment plan, Atwood said. In this program, the service works out an agreement with the person's creditor or creditors and arranges a monthly payment plan. The person in debt then sends in one check each month to the service, which divides it into amounts to pay off the creditors.

Marines move to ships off Lebanese coast

LAS VEGAS, Nevada — President Reagan, responding to the crisis in Lebanon, said Tuesday U.S. Marines based at Beirut Airport would be transferred to American ships off the Lebanese coast. He also said in a statement that U.S. naval and air forces would attack any units firing into Beirut from parts of Lebanon controlled by Syria.

The redeployment of the 1,600 U.S. Marines outside Beirut "will begin shortly and will proceed in stages," Reagan said, while other U.S. military personnel will remain on the ground in Lebanon for training and equipping the Lebanese army. The statement was issued when Reagan arrived at his California ranch outside Santa Barbara and was relayed to White House reporters in Las Vegas where the president had spoken earlier in the day.

"To enhance the safety of American and other multi-national force (peacekeeping) personnel in Lebanon, I have authorized U.S. naval forces . . . to provide naval gunfire and air support against any units firing into greater Beirut from parts of Lebanon controlled by Syria, as well as against any units directly attacking American or multi-national force personnel and facilities."

Israel: No support for Gemayel

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israel made clear Tuesday it would not go to the aid of Lebanese President Amin Gemayel and was still seeking a way to end its 20-month occupation of southern Lebanon. A senior official said Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir had met with an emissary sent by Gemayel. He gave no details but told reporters that Israel was "not willing to go to war" on anyone's behalf. Shamir, under pressure to pull the army out of Lebanon, ruled out any military intervention to help Gemayel when fighting engulfed Beirut several days ago.

Astronaut leaves ship unfettered

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Astronaut Bruce McCandless Tuesday climbed into a spacesuit, strapped on a rocket pack and flew out of the shuttle Challenger into the black void of space. "We sure have a fine flying machine here," McCandless said as he flew about 150 feet from the shuttle and then steered himself back to the open cargo hold. His solo free flight was the first time a man has ever ventured untethered from a spacecraft. It was an event for which he had practiced for 15 years.

"I could go faster but I don't want to rush it," the enthusiastic astronaut said as he moved away at a speed of about four inches per second. As he passed down the side of Challenger he asked, "Sure you don't want the windows washed while I'm out here?" Looking down, McCandless said excitedly, "Hey, that's Florida down there."

Soviet says U.S. torpedos arms talks

GENEVA, Switzerland — The Soviet Union Tuesday used the Geneva disarmament conference to launch a fierce attack on the United States, accusing it of torpedoing arms talks and of wanting to achieve military superiority. On the opening day of this year's session of the Conference on Disarmament, chief Soviet negotiator Viktor Issraelyan said Washington had sabotaged talks on limiting medium-range nuclear missiles and parallel negotiations on strategic weapons by presenting unrealistic and unacceptable proposals. "At the same time, Washington was preparing the actual deployment of new first-strike nuclear missiles," he said. The purpose of the 40-nation conference here is to consider a ban on chemical weapons.

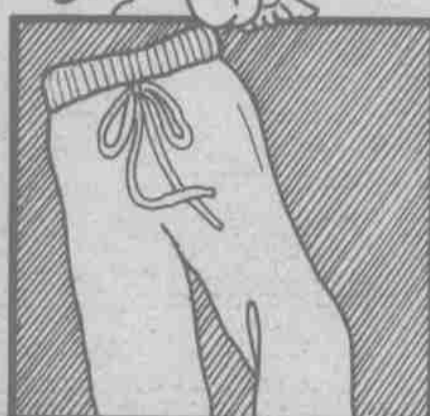

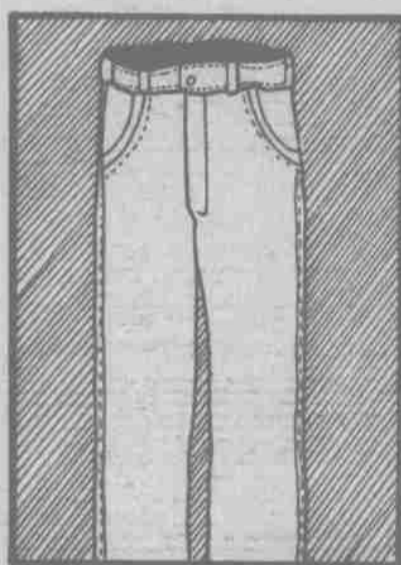

'Mouth-to-mouth' contact needed

LAS VEGAS, Nevada — In an apparent slip of the tongue, President Reagan Tuesday urged Republicans to make "mouth-to-mouth" contact with voters in the presidential election campaign this year. Reagan, who spoke at a Republican fundraising luncheon, said his party should not be complacent and assume it would repeat its victory in the 1980 election. "It's that mouth-to-mouth, that hand-to-hand contact, that telling about the differences in the record" between Republicans and Democrats that will bring victory, he said.
