

Board names Welsch fall DN editor

The UNL Publications Board Tuesday elected Chris Welsch editor in chief of the Daily Nebraskan for the fall semester.

Welsch, a junior news-editorial and English major, currently is wire and supplements editor and night news editor at the Daily Nebraskan. He also has worked as a news, sports and entertainment reporter, photographer and copy editor during his two years at the Daily Nebraskan. He also plays on the UNL Rugby Club.

Welsch said his first priority as editor will be to reduce the number of corrections caused by inaccuracies.

"I want to increase the paper's credibility," he said. "We'll have some training for new and inexperienced reporters."

Readers can expect several changes for the paper next fall, Welsch said, including a weekly entertainment pullout supplement, daily listing of events and three supplements that will feature in-depth features and magazine-style stories.

Elementary students exhibit artwork

Art by young Nebraskans is on display through April 15 at the 37th Annual Nebraska Elementary School Art Exhibit.

The free exhibit, which showcases artwork done by students in kindergarten through eighth grade, drew 3,459 entries representing 201 schools, said Orvid Owens, coordinator of the show. Of that total, 449 pieces were selected for the exhibit by judges John Clabaugh of Nebraska Wesleyan University, Marian Ellis and Millicent Savery, both of UNL.

Criteria used by the judges in the selection process included creativity, creativity vs. copy work, and whether the work was based on the artist's own experiences or environment, Owens said.

"The judges selected pictures to be considered, then they went through them a second time," he said.

Various mediums were used, Owens said. They included pencil, ink, charcoal, crayons, oil and water paints and prints, he said.

The exhibit, which began March 31, is available for viewing in the fourth floor auditorium of Miller & Paine department store, 13th and O streets from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Sponsors of the show are the UNL Division of Continuing Studies in cooperation with the UNL Teachers College Center for Curriculum and Instruction and Miller & Paine.

During the summer, smaller exhibits will be assembled and made available to libraries, community arts councils, museums and interested businesses, Owens said. The show also will tour Nebraska schools during the 1984-85 school year.
