UNL second baseman Kurt Eubanks slides safely back to first base in the first game of the Huskers' double-header sweep of the Northwestern (Iowa) Red Raiders.

Basepaths...

Continued from Page 10. Nebraska began the second game of the double-header in much the way they finished the first. Nebraska runners stole eight bases in the first inning as the Huskers racked up four runs.

The second inning proved no easier for the hapless Red Raiders. Nebraska sent 16 men to the plate in the bottom half of the inning, and 12 of them scored.

Both teams remained scoreless after the second inning, and the scheduled seven-inning game was called after five because of the ten run rule.

Nebraska pitcher Roger Webb provided the only suspense in the second game, as the junior narrowly missed throwing a no-hitter. Webb entered the fourth inning with a perfect game. After retiring the first hitter, a Husker error and a double down the third base line ended his chances for a no-hitter.

Webb managed to retire the next batter and struck out another Red Raider to end the inning. The righthander easily set down all three of Northwestern's batters in the fifth inning to record a shutout and post his fourth win of the year against no losses.
