Bigotry flaws system

I agree with Bill Allen's apparent opinion that the Greek system is flawed by its bigotry (Daily Nebraskan, April 23). Mike Barrett's response (Daily Nebraskan, April 24) supports the fact that many Greeks view themselves as members of "an elite group."

Celebrate Greeks

Bill Allen's column "Greek Week: Don't include me" (Daily Nebraskan, April 23) is an abortion of truth. Although I felt the article was somewhat humorous, it was written out of total ignorance.

Greek Week '84, as is every Greek Week, is a celebration of something members of the Greek system are proud of. Maybe Bill Allen has nothing to be proud of. There is no other organization on this campus who has ever united to do more for UNL. Last year Greeks raised more than $9,000 for the Morrill Hall climate control system, in a week-long marathon. This year they hope to raise even more participating in a dance marathon. The other events of Greek Week '84 are a chance for UNL Greeks to unite and say we are proud to be an asset of UNL's campus.

Old tests aid study

This is in regard to the second column in as many days written by Bill Allen against the Greek system (Daily Nebraskan, April 23). It is not fair to judge something, such as an exam file, only on the basis of how it may be abused. Exam files in the Greek houses are intended only to be a complement to regular study habits. Many instructors on this campus encourage using old tests to aid in studying for their classes; some even provide them. It isn't actually cheating to study old exams since most instructors have enough initiative to use different questions on their tests.

WHEN WORDS FAIL YOU...
SAY IT WITH...

SNIGGLETS!

It's the only place you'll find just the right words to describe life's indescribable events. Created by Rich Hall of HBO's smash comedy, "Not Necessarily the News," sniglets are outrageously funny and uncannily apt:

SNIGLET (snig' lit) n.
Any word that doesn't appear in the dictionary, but should.

NAPJERK (nap' jurk) n.
The sudden convulsion of the body just as one is about to doze off.

ERDU (uhr' dew) n.
The leftover accumulation of rubber particles after erasing a mistake on a test paper.

EXPRESSHOLES
(eks pres' holz) n.
People who try to sneak more than the "eight items or less" into the express check-out line.
