When Tate got back on her feet the Huskers were in seventh place. Tate ran an amazing 400-meter last leg, and the Huskers finished third place.

Nebraska's two jumpers attending the Relays had a disappointing day also.

Glen Loontjer, the Husker's top pole vaulter, passed until the bar reached 17-1. He then missed on his first three attempts and was out.

Jeff Loescher, the Huskers high jumper who cleared 7-3½ last week at the Kansas Relays failed to clear opening height of 7-0.

Amid all of this, the Huskers' did place other athletes. Anthony Small finished sixth in the 100-meter dash; Mark Gokie placed fourth in the 1,500-meter run; Wally Duffy finished fifth in the 10,000-meter run; Stephen Fletcher finished fifth in the 110-meter hurdles; Dennis Wallace finished fifth in the 200-meter dash and redshirt Jean Verster finished fifth in the special invitational 1,500 meter run.

Husker men, women finish fourth in Big Eight tennis

Nebraska's men's tennis team achieved its stated Big Eight tournament goals this past weekend. The Huskers finished fourth in the Woodside, Kan. meet and Jim Carson won the No. 5 singles competition.

UNL Coach Kerry McDermott said before the meet that if the Huskers could overtake Colorado and finish fourth, he would be satisfied. UNL began the meet three points behind the Buffaloes. Led by Carson, the Huskers outscored CU 62-54 to claim fourth place. Oklahoma State easily won the title, followed by Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska.

McDermott's other hope upon entering the meet was that a Husker individual could win a title. Carson granted that wish, coming back from a first-set loss in the finals. Carson defeated Darek Hryniewicz of Oklahoma State, 4-6, 7-5, 64.

Kathy Hawkins' women's tennis team also finished fourth in the conference. Oklahoma State captured every individual title and the Cowgirls ran away with the meet. Oklahoma finished second followed by Kansas and Nebraska.

The Husker's Cari Groce finished second in No. 5 singles play as she dropped the final to OSU's Stacy Swanson, 6-3, 6-1.
