

Times lean for hogs

Low profits are the major reason for the market decline of hogs according to a UNL professor.

Al Wellman, an agriculture economics professor, said the current economic situation forces many farmers to reduce the number of their pigs to an affordable level.

Because of the low number of hogs, Wellman said he expects to see pork prices rise in the near future.

Statistician Dennis Johnson of the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said he agreed with Wellman that hog production is in the declining phase.

Johnson said as soon as farmers begin saving money they buy more hogs. But as soon as they start losing money, they liquidate them.

Make Summer School More Bearable!

It's hard to go to classes and study when it seems like everybody else is out having fun. If summer school has left you short of time and cash, we can help!

We'll pay you to study, working around your busy schedule. And we'll only ask for a few hours of what little spare time you've got.

We're University Plasma Center. We're open all year to help students like you earn extra cash.

You'll be paid $10 for each plasma donation and you can donate every 72 hours. You can earn up to $100 a month.

And, just for summer, we've added new cash bonuses, so you may win even more!

Before or after class, come see how you can make things more bearable, earn more money and have more fun.

And if you've never donated before, bring this ad for an additional $2 for your first donation.
