

UNL basketball tickets still offered to students

Students can still get season basketball tickets, but a rush in last Monday's first-day sales has made seats a rare commodity.

"We've been able to fill all of the requests that have come in so far," Jean Walcott, athletic ticket office clerical assistant, said. "But we should emphasize that if students want a ticket and haven't turned in an application yet, they had better hurry."

Walcott and Joe Selig, assistant ticket manager, said ticket sales went extremely well the first day, with lines stretching far out of the South Stadium doors. The sales then dropped considerably and applications still are accepted. However, Selig said, at some point the students' priority to remaining tickets will be cut off.

Walcott said all of the tickets for the floor bleachers, which are reserved for student use, have been taken. The remaining student tickets are along the bleachers at the top of the sports center.

"We could be close to sellouts again, but we have to wait and see how many faculty and staff requests we get," Walcott said.

Tickets are $18 for the 13 home games during the school season. Tickets may be picked up from the ticket office Nov. 5 through 9.

Tickets also will go on sale next week for the student allotment at the Oct. 20 Colorado game in Boulder. The $18 tickets will be divided evenly for sale Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In order to buy a ticket, students will need to present an identification card. Groups are limited to six, and each person must be present to buy a ticket. Payment must be made with a personal check or the exact amount in cash.

Letters

Dear Steve Harvey,
In reply to your "pro" remarks concerning the Washington Redskins —

Being a faithful Redskin fan of some 18 years, I would like to enlighten you. There have been no tickets available for public sale since 1966. Many of those seasons the Skins were losers, but game tickets remained a status symbol (as they do today) to the thousands of cheering enthusiastic fans who clamor into RFK Stadium each home game. I might add that there are hundreds who remain on a season ticket waiting list.

The fans loved the Redskins romp over the Giants last Sunday.

Now I'm wondering: if the Redskins are NERDS and I'm a devoted Redskin fan that must make me a NERD. I'm also a devoted Nebraska fan. As you are most likely a Nebraska fan too, what does that make you, Mr. Harvey?

Wonder what our great Nebraska coach, Tom Osborne, who once played for the Washington Redskins, thinks of your callous remarks?

See you in Syracuse?
