Twas the night before the debate and all through the electorate...

n honor of the upcoming political spectacle on Sunday, all snug and well seated, (and with apologies to Cle- while the visions of TV-land ment C. Moore,) the following once more were repeated. was penned:

when all thru the land, there was great anticipation for matters at hand.

The antennas were set on the TVs with care. in hopes that a TV show soon would be there.

YOU KNOW IT'S A

And soft drinks in hand and show guides in lap, we all settled down for more of this pap.

When up on the TV there arose such a clatter, we sprang from our seats Twas the night before Monday to see what was the matter.

Away to the TV we flew like a flash, to see if something good would be shown last.

The decor of the set on this new-looking show. gave a luster of hope to viewers at home.

When what to our wondering eyes should appear, but candidates espousing the same crap from past years.

With a little old president so lively and quick? Facing the Democrats choice, front runner Fritz.

More rapid than eagles the counters they came, and they battled and shouted and played the "votes" game. Now Mondale! Now Reagan!

Like Carter and Nixon. on foreign affairs and the president's mission.

To some of the press to back of the nail, to the audience at home it's all the squall.

So out to the houses the causes they flew, with a parcel of promises and "good intentions" too. But I heard us exclaim at the end of the night, whichever we vote for we'll have the same plight.
