Situation was 'blown out of proportion'

Referring to the Daily Nebraskan's editorial Friday about dedicated "Boss" fans, we feel the article was blown out of proportion. For having the huge response and increase of people camping since Tuesday, the UPC is doing an excellent job in trying to keep everything organized. We have heard nothing but positive remarks from the crowd and the crowd is doing everything it can to help it run smoothly.

We don't feel the grounds are a "disaster." People are trying their best to keep litter cleaned up. As far as ruining the "landscape," most people don't consider sitting on weeds as causing "hundreds or thousands of dollars worth of damage."

The campers should be given a lot of credit for being so cooperative and UPC for bringing the biggest event of the year to Lincoln.

Catholic views questioned in politics

Perhaps Chris Burbach should spare the American public his vote once again in 1984. He states that he will cast his vote for the Mondale/Ferraro ticket because Ferraro is a Catholic.

Being a Catholic, I would find it very difficult to tell my grandchildren I voted for a Catholic woman who was a supporter of abortion. A woman, who if elected, will allow millions of abortions to occur in this country.

I would suggest that Chris Burbach re-examine his Catholic values and beliefs. I also would suggest that Burbach sober up a bit before he cast his vote for the first time in 1984. Maybe then he will consider the issues rather than the candidates' looks, gender and religious backgrounds.
