Unique store specializes in stage supplies

Lafayette's Topper's is not a second-hand store, says its owner James "Lafayette" Anderson. It is a "unique boutique" that sells theatrical accessories, custom make-up, wigs and hats for men and women.

Lafayette's Topper's, 117 S. 27th St., opened Oct. 5. The store specializes in theatrical products, while most other Lincoln shops sell them only as a sideline, Anderson said.

"I keep up on the latest trends in styles," he said. "Fashion catalogues are also available to my customers."

Anderson supplies men's and women's hats from such fashion centers as New York and Chicago. His wigs also are bought at similar outlets.

Anderson said his most popular wig style is the New California Curl, while the first choice in hats remains the Fedora. Vintage rhinestone jewelry is an added attraction.

Although most of his customers are middle-aged, Anderson said he sells to people of all ages.

"People buy not only of necessity, but also for style," he said. "My products have a wide price range, which anyone can afford."

Anderson said he makes special orders for people, such as chemotherapy patients. He also hopes to attract business from theater groups in the area.

Anderson, a licensed cosmetologist, worked out of his home for 13 years, selling only wigs.

"I like working with wigs, because you could be more creative," he said. "It's a lot easier to change something on a wig than it is on a real head of hair."

Anderson opened his store when the Purse Revue changed location.

"It was the perfect chance to bring my business to the public's attention," he said.

Starting with two blank walls, Anderson completely remodeled the building. He repainted the walls, laid carpet and added furniture.

Anderson and a friend also designed a neon light, which rotates in the front window of the shop.

"Several people have commented on the light," he said. "It's an added attraction, which gets people inside the store."

Anderson said business has been good so far, but like many new shops, many people don't know it's there yet.
