Women's group pickets
city pornography outlet

By Beth Thompson
Daily Nebraskan Staff Reporter

"We want people to know there is pornography in Lincoln, said Rebecca Chance, spokeswoman for Lincoln Women Against Pornography.

Tonight at 6:30 p.m., the group will picket Fenton Sundries at 19th and O streets to protest the city's largest collection of soft- and hard-core pornography, Chance said.

Besides the two downtown Lincoln pornographic establishments, Cinema X Movie Arcade and Adult Bookstore and the Embassy Theater, Chance said, more than 100 stores in Lincoln sell or offer pornographic materials.

Fenton Sundries' manager, who asked that his name not be used, said the only merchandise in his store that people could protest would be the magazines he receives from his wholesaler, Lincoln News Agency.

"They (the picketers) should be picketing the wholesaler," he said. He explained that he doesn't choose the magazines on his shelves, he simply accepts what the wholesaler gives him.

He did say, however, that such magazines have "gotten a little ragged," when it comes to the explicit pictures.

Chance said that while women were supposed to close their eyes to pornography in the past, they must become aware of it now. "Pornography tells lies about women" and about women's sexuality. And it's time to "break the silence," she said.

Chance said anyone interested in supporting the picket tonight is invited to attend. She said people should realize that the obscenity law in America has not been successful in preventing pornography.

In fact, the industry has grown into a $9 billion a year business, with child pornography growing the fastest, Chance said.

Lincoln Women Against Pornography is anti-pornography but pro-erotica (not anti-sex or anti-nudity), Chance said. She defined pro-erotic as to display people in situations where an equal balance of power is created and no one is exploited.

Pornography, on the other hand, depicts violence and exploitations, and "we won't be silenced any longer on this issue," Chance said.

Lincoln Women Against Pornography originated 10 months ago. It has sponsored fund-raisers and bi-monthly meetings on Tuesday nights. The next meeting is Nov. 13 at Commonplace, 333 N. 14th St., at 8 p.m.

The organization also is planning to establish a resource library for those in need of legal and informational help.
