The Daily Nebraskan Needs Your Help

We're looking for a few good people to help us put out our high-quality newspaper. As one of our staffers put it, the DN isn't just an adventure . . . it's a job. And that's where you come in!

The Daily Nebraskan needs staffers for the spring semester. Editor positions are open in all departments: news, editorial, sports, arts and entertainment, photography, copy desk art and special supplements. We'll also be hiring four senior reporters and several editorial columnists. Applications are available in room 34 of the Nebraska Union, and will be accepted beginning November 20 through the 29th. Please sign up for an interview when you pick up your application.

Reporters, copy editors, artists, and photographers will be hired at a future date.

You don't need to have a background in journalism to work at the DN. Many staff members aren't journalism majors. We hire on the basis of talent and enthusiasm, not age. Have questions? Call Chris Welsch, editor in chief, at 472-1766. He'll be glad to help you.

The Daily Nebraskan is an equal opportunity employer.
