Husker, native Nebraskans named to Kodak's All-American squad

Nebraska center Mark Traynowicz, Wyoming tight end Jay Novacek and Iowa linebacker Larry Station were named to the Kodak All-American team selected by the American Football Coaches Association.

Kodak announced the All-American squad Tuesday in Rochester, N.Y.

Traynowicz was an All-Big Eight selection and one of 12 players considered for the Lombardi Trophy awarded to the nation's top lineman.

Novacek, from Gothenburg, is a senior who "has been a key thoroughbred in Wyoming's many calvary charges into the end zone this year," according to the Kodak release.

Station, a junior from Omaha Central, was one of five juniors on the squad.

Other Big Eight selections were Tony Casillas of Oklahoma and Rod Brown of Oklahoma State.

The team will be brought together and honored in Dallas, Texas, Dec. 6-9. A half-hour television program featuring the team members will be aired in December.
