

Husker swimmers, divers to dual with Razorbacks and Mavericks

Nebraska's swimming and diving teams, both of whom are ranked in the nation's top 20, will host joint duals this weekend against a club team and a national power.

The Husker teams meet UNO tonight at 7 and Arkansas at 1 p.m. Saturday. UNO is a club team, and the dual should allow both coaches to swim athletes at different events.

Arkansas, however, has the fourth and fifth fastest sprinters in the country on the men's side, and the women's team has added a Canadian Olympian.

Cal Bent's men's team hasn't competed since splitting duals with Southern Illinois and Arkansas two weeks ago. The women's team lost a close dual at Minnesota Friday, but rebounded to beat Iowa State 79-61 Saturday.

The Minnesota loss was the first dual defeat of the season for the 15th-ranked Husker women.

"It was good in a sense that we swam well," Coach Ray Huppert said. "We lost the first relay, and for the first time this year we had to come from behind. We did what we had to do to get back in it, but got touched out in the last event."

Huppert said the Huskers also fell behind at Iowa State, but caught the Cyclones on the 15th event.

Huppert said the UNO meet will serve as an opportunity to see what a swimmer's third and fourth events at the conference meet will be. Therefore, many of his leading swimmers will switch events tonight.

Arkansas is led by sprinters Chris Cantwell and Norman Wyatt, who have times of 20.57 and 20.50 in the 50-yard free. Doug Hubner has Nebraska's best time in the event at 21.16.

The Razorbacks' other ranked swimmer is John Ulibarri in the 200 breaststroke, but the 400 medley relay team and the 400 freestyle relay are ranked third and fifth respectively.
