

Newt Copple...

The state last week dropped charges against S.E. Copple regarding an illegal loan.

Newt Copple said if Kerrey and Beverage reject his invitation to debate, he "will have no alternative but to meet once again with the press and any interested member of the public for the sole purpose of telling all about this great Nebraska cover-up, to blow the lid off this scandal once and for all."

In a printed handout, Copple listed 15 questions, among others, he would like Kerrey and Beverage to answer. "Kerrey and Beverage personally owe it to all Nebraskans to come forth with correct, concise answers to these and many other questions," Copple said. Copple said he knows the answers to those questions.

When asked if he thought Kerrey and Beverage were involved in any wrongdoing in connection with Commonwealth or State Securities, Copple answered, "Are you naive enough to believe they didn't have something to do with it?"

Two unannounced speakers surprised the gathering when they stepped behind the podium. Ray Mulbach, who was defeated in his bid for state senator of the 27th district last year, said he came to the press conference voluntarily with the intention of "straightening out Nebraska government." Copple did not ask him to appear, he said.

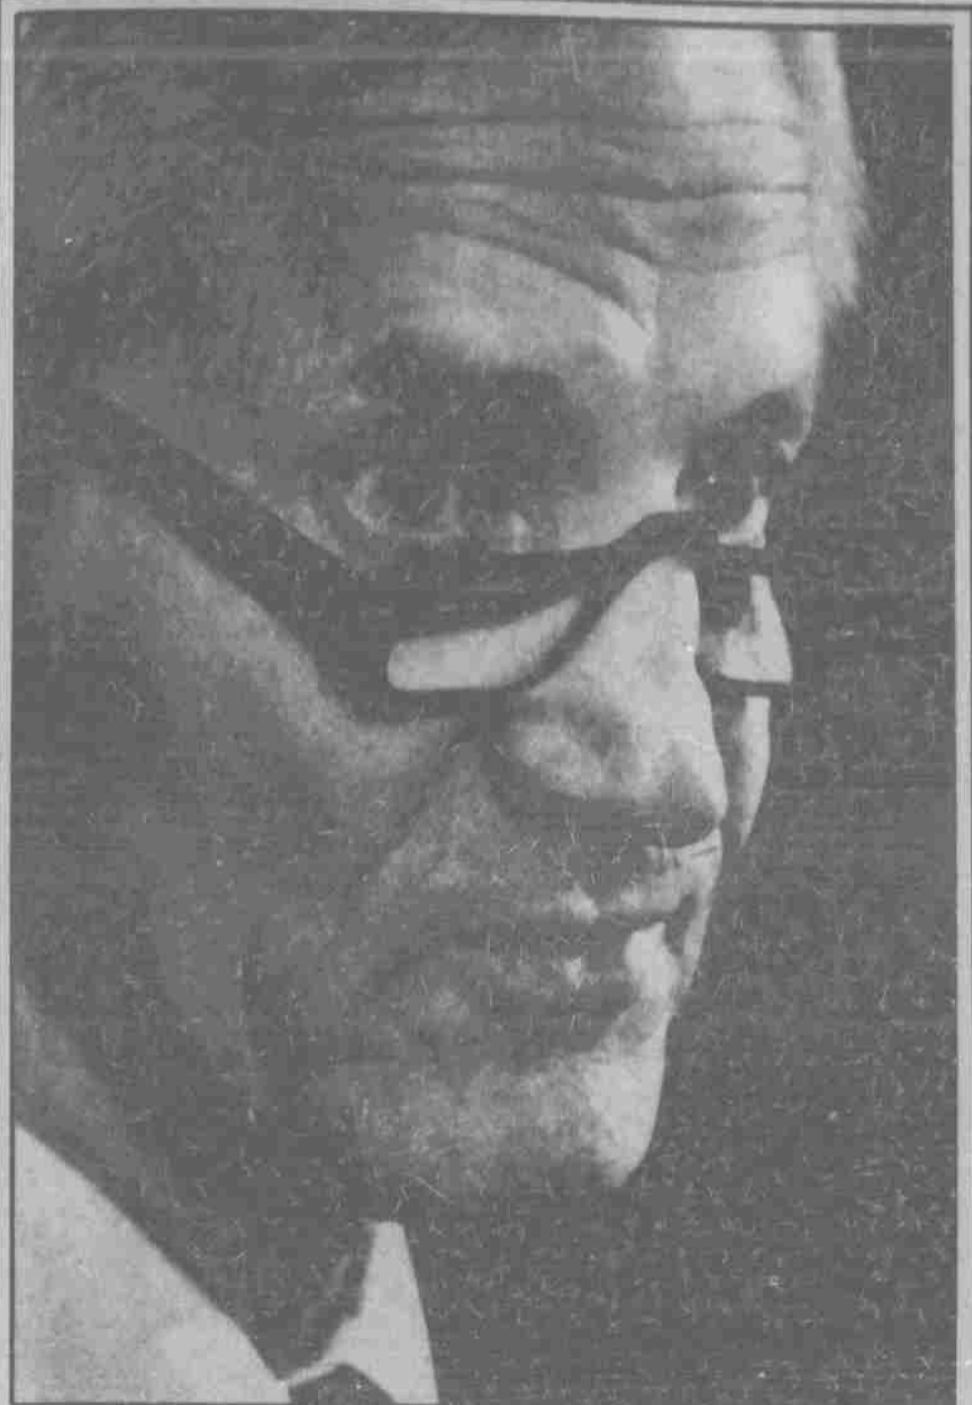

Alan Rice, an officer of the Amateur Athletic Union, said a mutual friend told him about the press conference and advised him to "help out my friend." Rice said he has known Copple since about 1950, when Copple was a professional wrestler. Rice said he has worked with Copple several times, and without Copple's participation and donations, amateur wrestling in Nebraska and in the country would not be the same, he said.

He said his role Thursday was that of a character witness.

"It is my absolute conviction that he (Copple) is an honest man," Rice said. "The thought of him going to jail is deplorable."

One spectator said since Copple is already headed for jail, Copple should go ahead and tell whatever it is he is saving for the debate.

"What's a few more lawsuits, Newt?" asked the spectator standing by the doorway.
