Tuesday's Women in Perspective series will focus on "Prime-time Women: New and Improved by CBS." The series will be from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. in the Women's Resource Center, Nebraska Union 117.

Barking dogs, stray animals, exotic pets: Animal Control will discuss newly enacted ordinances and hours tonight at the Neighborhood Watch Association meeting, Auld Center at Antelope Park.

Water management implementation will be the focus of the 14th annual Nebraska Water Conference at the UNL Center for Continuing Education, 33rd and Holdrege streets, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The program was planned by the Nebraska Water Conference Council, a statewide group representing 90 public and private agencies and groups interested in water-related issues.

Registration fee is $60 before Tuesday and $65 at the door. More information and room reservations are available from the Department of Conferences, Nebraska Center 205 or by calling 402-472-2844.

Are women as equally involved as men in the classrooms at UNL? Who is more likely to participate classroom discussions — a woman or a man? Are instructors more apt to criticize the contributions of women or men?

These and similar questions are answered in the research findings of Myra and David Sadker of American University in Washington. The Sadkers will share information on sex equality in the classroom during a series of workshops and informational presentations at UNL today and Tuesday.

During their stay at UNL, the Sadkers will conduct workshops for students and faculty members. They also will speak at meetings sponsored by the College of Business Administration and the College of Agriculture. A schedule follows:

● Today — 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.: Workshop co-sponsored by the Chancellor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Resource Center; open to all students in the Nebraska Union; 7:30 to 9 p.m.: Presentation co-sponsored by CCSW and the Panhellenic Association in the Nebraska Union.

● Tuesday — 7 to 9:30 p.m.: Workshop co-sponsored by CCSW and the department of residential education at Neihardt Hall's Blue Room.
