

NIT...

 "Moe Iba comes from good stock," Hazzard said. Hazzard played on the gold-medal-winning 1964 U.S. Olympic team, coached by Henry Iba.
 UCLA's victory against Montana last week marked the Bruins' first appearance in the NIT. UCLA dominated basketball in the mid-1960s and early '70s, winning 10 national championships, including eight in a row.
 After a 3-5 start, UCLA came on in the Pacific Ten season and finished 16-12. The Bruins won eight of their last nine games with the lone loss in a four-overtime game to Southern Cal.

 "This team deserved to go to a post-season tournament," Hazzard said. "Our overall record didn't get us into the NCAA even though we were playing the best basketball in the conference at the end of the season."
 Hazzard said he thinks UCLA is back on track with its basketball program.

He said he enjoyed the improvement his team made this season.
 "It's great to see boys become men and that's just what happened to this team," Hazzard said.
 UCLA will start Reggie Miller and Gary Maloncon at forwards, Brad Wright at center and Nigel Miguel and Montel Hatcher at guards. Nebraska will go with Moore and Jackman at forwards, Hoppen at center and Carr and Harvey Marshall at guards.
