

Sheldon...

Lawyers on the NAA board have also been looking into the legal ramifications of the Sheldon will, to see if the budget cuts might violate the will's conditions that the gallery's collections be properly housed, Neubert said. (The Sheldon family left the university $3 million to build the gallery 20 years ago.) "All these options have been thought about," Neubert said. Neubert hopes that the budget problems will be settled in early August so that he can take his first vacation in two years. Until the budget is finalized, he and other Sheldon employees and supporters will continue to play a waiting game, Neubert said. "They're (budget makers) holding the cards at this time," Neubert said. "It's premature to lay out bodies in the doorway."
