Latest Buffett sound strained

By Bill Allen
Arts and Entertainment Editor

Jimmy Buffett is alive and well and back in Nashville, among other places. The "laid back son of a sailor" recently opened a store in Key West, Fla., called "Margaritaville," which sells all kinds of Buffett material, including his own line of clothes.

REVIEW D.I.S.C.

Buffett has also written a script for an episode of "Miami Vice," in which he will star and write the music.

He wrote a song, "Turnin' Around," for Carl Reiner's new movie, "Summer Rentals." The late summer movie stars John Candy and Richard Crenna.

So, being an old Buffett fan from way back, enjoying "Margaritaville" immensely, I looked forward to the release of his newest album, Last Mango in Paris.

I saw "Summer Rentals," and really enjoyed "Turnin' Around," although the song is not on the new album. My anticipation built even further when I read the help Buffett received on the new album. Roy Orbison, Jonathan Edwards and former Eagle Timothy B. Schmit were among the singers contributing harmonies. Another former Eagle, Glenn Frey, layed down some guitar parts.

Yet the album is a disappointment. Surprisingly, it disappoints not so much because of the music, but for the lyrics and song writing.

Buffett has a reputation as one of the best songwriters around, and with former Eagles (a favorite group) hanging around and helping with the songs I expected some classic easy listening party songs.

This is not the case on the album. Most of the lyrics are pretty shallow.

For example, from the title cut we get:

He said: I ate the last mango in Paris/ took the last plane out of Saigon/ took the first boat to China/ And Jimmy there's still so much to be done.

Please see BUFFETT on 43.
