Fall theater productions feature drama, family, Christmas themes

By John Lechner
Theater Critic

UNL students and faculty members have the advantage of exploring the arts through the university. In fact, some theater-goers say Lincoln's productions frequently are on par with the professional offerings of larger cities.

Nebraska Director's Theatre had not yet chosen its fall lineup. Spokesman Fred Rubeck said the schedule soon would be planned. For the last several years, NDT has filled a gap in local theater by providing an additional outlet for local playwrights, directors and actors.

NDT helps actors hone their skills, and the result is frequently a worthwhile theater production for those involved in the productions, as well as the audiences.

University Theatre is one of the best in Lincoln. UNL's theater department is known for its quality productions, as well as for the comprehensive training of its students.

The first fall production at UNL is "The Diary of Anne Frank." This timely drama features a reworked script that has proven itself in other cities. Production dates are Oct. 3, 4, 5 and 7 through 12, with curtain time at 8 p.m. in the Howell Theatre.

Following "Anne Frank," Dr. Rex McGraw, theater department chairman, will direct the world premiere of "A Stone's Throw," written by UNL student David Boles.

McGraw said he is looking forward to the play because he thinks Boles is a "very talented writer."

McGraw said he plans to enter the production in the American College Theatre Festival. He said the show is a contemporary expose of a family's relationships and problems, some based in reality, but with expressionistic qualities. Play dates are Oct. 24 through 26 and Oct. 28 through Nov. 2.

Henrik Isben's "Ghosts" will follow "A Stone's Throw." "Ghosts" is a look at family problems of the 19th century, 100 years before the examination presented by "A Stone's Throw."

McGraw recommends seeing the shows back-to-back for an incisive look at how values have changed in a century.

"Ghosts" is scheduled for Nov. 7, 8, 9 and 12 through 16, in the Studio Theatre of the Temple Building.

UNL Theatre then presents a lengthy holiday run of "A Christmas Carol," with 13 performances between Dec. 5 and 21. Matinee performances of "A Christmas Carol" also will be offered.

This will be the fourth time "A Christmas Carol" has been presented by UNL. This production, however, will feature a new script of Dickens' tale and will be under the direction of new faculty member Dr. Glenn Q. Pierce.

McGraw said that although "A Christmas Carol" has been presented several times in the past, the quality productions by the UNL Theatre Department always have proven popular with Lincoln audiences. He called the new production, "A Christmas present to Lincoln."

The Lincoln Community Playhouse, 2500 S. 56th St., offers the whimsical "King of Hearts" Sept. 5 through 8, 12 through 15 and 19 through 22.

Next on the bill is "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," which plays Oct. 10 through 13, 17 through 20, 24 through 27.

As a special holiday treat for local audiences, the Playhouse will feature "The Wizard of Oz" in December.

Bands play 'til cows come home

"Said the Guru, 'Well, I tell dem and I tell you what it is. Gurock is dance music! But not just disco or reggae. It is surf rock, acid rock, oldies, newies, rhythm 'n' blues, rockabilly, ruffably, glitter rock, space rock, swing jazz, rock 'n' sock, rock 'n' bop, be bop, anything you can dance to.' Where did the term originate? 'I made it up.'"

For those who couldn't experience the weirdness that has gone on before, "til the Cows Come Home" records it.

Becker said the information was hard to find because daily newspapers seldom covered bands thoroughly.

Most of the information came from word of mouth or through interviews with musicians, Becker said. The rest was through research at the Nebraska State Historical Society and old newspapers.

In the 1960s The Omaha World-Herald had a teen section and the Omaha Sun had a high school youth section that carried a lot of band information, Becker said.

The last section of the book is a Discography, which alphabetically lists the artist, record title, label and number, and the date. The Discography has 575 listings and includes pictures of some of the labels and album covers.

Becker worked for the Lincoln Journal for more than 11 years as an entertainment writer and, most recently, as arts and entertainment editor. He also has played in several bands, most notably Punky Black and the Excessives, who recorded three times for Real Gone Records.

Currently Becker is living in Seattle, Wash., working for the Seattle Times and freelance writing.

Even those with a slight interest in music probably will find the book interesting. Those who are really into the Nebraska music scene will find that the book covers a significant chunk.

The book, available only in paperback, is selling at Lincoln record stores and bookstores, for $12.95.
