

Native artists works on display

Beginning Saturday the Great Plains Art Collection, located on the second floor of Love Library, will feature the works of two native Nebraskans.

Tom Palmerton of Brownville and Ted Long of North Platte are both self-taught sculptors and painters.

Palmerton's progressive set-waste moldings and castings serve both an educational and artistic purpose. Commissioned by the Great Plains Art Collection, Palmerton's bronzes describe how bronze is cast by showing various bronze pieces in the stages of the casting process.

Ted Long's western painting, "Summer Shower," which represents Native Americans in their traditional environment is also on display.

The public is invited to a reception for the artists on Sunday from 2:30 to 5 p.m. in the Great Plains Room.

The Great Plains Art Collection was donated by John and Elizabeth Christlieb of Bellevue, in 1980 and now is funded by an endowment from the NU Foundation.

The collection is open to the public from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, and from 1:30 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Dan Dulaney/Daily Nebraskan

Bob Berky, a silent clown, demonstrates the finer points of balloon art with the help of volunteer assistant Juliette Miles, a UNL senior history major, Wednesday night at Chesterfield, Bottomsley & Potts.

Berky uses only a duck call and facial expressions to communicate and depends on audience participation and observation during his performance.

At the height of his routine before the large crowd, Berky removed his hat, thanked the audience and said: "If you want to see more of what I do, come see me Sunday night at Kimball Hall." His Kimball show, which will start at 8 p.m., will be his last Lincoln performance.

Berky is in Lincoln this week as part of the Kimball Performance series.
