

130 company representatives at UNL for career seminar

By Janis Lovitt
Staff Reporter

An all-university career planning and placement seminar is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today in the Nebraska Union Ballroom.

Gerry Phaneuf, director of the UNL Career Planning and Placement Center, said the seminar is the first of its kind at UNL. He said he expects about 1,200 to 1,500 students to attend the program.

The seminar, which is open to all college students statewide, will provide information from about 65 companies, he said. More than 130 company representatives will be available to hand out literature and talk to students.

Businesses will include retail, insurance, banking, social services, data processing, consumer products, food service, military, electronics and hospitals, Phaneuf said.

"We hope students will see how their degree will fit into these companies," he said.

Phaneuf said he hopes the career fair will help those students who will enter the job market soon.

"Students will be in the position to get to know possible employers," Phaneuf said.

Students will be able to ask companies what skills will be in demand for the future job market, he said.

The College Placement Association of Nebraska is working with the placement office to present the career fair. Because of this, Phaneuf said, college students from across the state will attend the seminar.

Phaneuf stressed the fact that all UNL students are invited.

"Many students think this program is just for seniors," he said. "We want people to know that this is for all students."

In addition to the informal presentations during the day, Phaneuf said, a workshop on resume writing and job search is scheduled from 9 to 10 a.m. before the seminar.

Husker gifts give to state

By Karen Shoemaker
Staff Reporter

The response to the Husker Holiday Gifts project has been terrific, said State Sen. Elroy Hefner of Coleridge Wednesday.

The project was launched earlier this month to promote Nebraska agricultural products as holiday gifts.

"What I'm trying to do is plant a seed," Hefner said.

Hefner wants to get businesses to help the Nebraska farm economy by giving Nebraska products. Many businesses give gifts to customers and employees during the holidays. Too often those gifts are products from out of state, Hefner said.

Instead of giving oranges and grapefruit from Florida, cheeses from Wisconsin or apples from Washington, he said, gifts of Nebraska agricultural products would keep money in the state, improve prices and cut livestock and poultry losses, he said.

Hefner said Husker gifts range from cheese boxes offered by the UNL Dairy Store to steaks from Omaha Steaks International. Nebraska Baskets in McCook is offering handcrafted baskets with assorted products, including cookbooks by Nebraska authors.

Pork, lamb, poultry, popcorn, apples, honey and candies are a few of the products to choose from, Hefner said. The gifts will range from $4.95 on up, he said.

Husker Holiday Gift Certificates are available through local merchants across the state, Hefner said.

Gift boxes will be available in supermarkets around Thanksgiving, Hefner said.

"If all goes well with the project this year, and the economy is still depressed next year, then the project will be promoted again," Hefner said.

UNL grounds crew busy preparing for snowfall

From Staff Reports

It's only September, but the UNL grounds crew is already preparing for snowfall.

"Our goal is to each time have all the walks, streets and parking areas on both campuses open by the time classes start after a snowfall," said Bud Dasenbrock, director of the UNL grounds department.

"We usually meet our goal unless there is extreme cold, high winds or drifting," Dasenbrock said. "Our average snowfall is less than 4 inches without high winds and without subzero temperatures."

He said priority areas for snow removal are the University Health Center, power plants and food service facilities.

Students parking in uncleared areas is the grounds crew's biggest problem, he said. Emergency parking plans will be published in November to inform students where to park.

According to Bill Fox of the Lincoln Street Maintenance Division, snow removal is planned in four phases. First, sand spreaders are used on main arterials and bus routes for traction on slick streets. Emergency snow routes are then plowed when more than two inches of snow falls. Remaining arterials and bus routes are plowed third and residential streets are plowed last, he said.

Natural gas prices will remain stable

From Staff Reports

For the fifth consecutive year, natural gas prices will not increase during the winter for 57 Nebraska communities, including Lincoln, a Minnegasco, Inc., official announced Friday.

The decision was made in order to keep natural gas prices competitive, according to Richard Ellingson, vice president of Minnegasco's Nebraska and South Dakota operations.

"Through our expense management efforts, and the decreased cost of natural gas at the wellhead, the price of natural gas for most of our customers in Nebraska has decreased during the past three years," he said.

Minnegasco, a Minneapolis-based distributor, last raised Nebraska's general gas rates in November 1980.
