Huskers' injury list grows; Holloway, Smith won't play

By Jeff Apel
Staff Reporter

The injury status of the Nebraska football team continued to worsen Thursday as starting middle guard Danny Noonan missed practice for the second straight day.

Noonan, a converted tackle from Lincoln, is suffering from a boil in his knee and may not even make the trip to Manhattan, Kansas for the Cornhuskers game against Kansas State, Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne said.

"(Danny) Noonan's injury is kind of touch and go," Osborne said. "If the knee doesn't get to the point where it comes to a head and we can drain it in the morning, he may not make the trip."

Osborne appeared equally concerned about the injury status of McCathorn Clayton, who left Thursday's practice early with a headache.

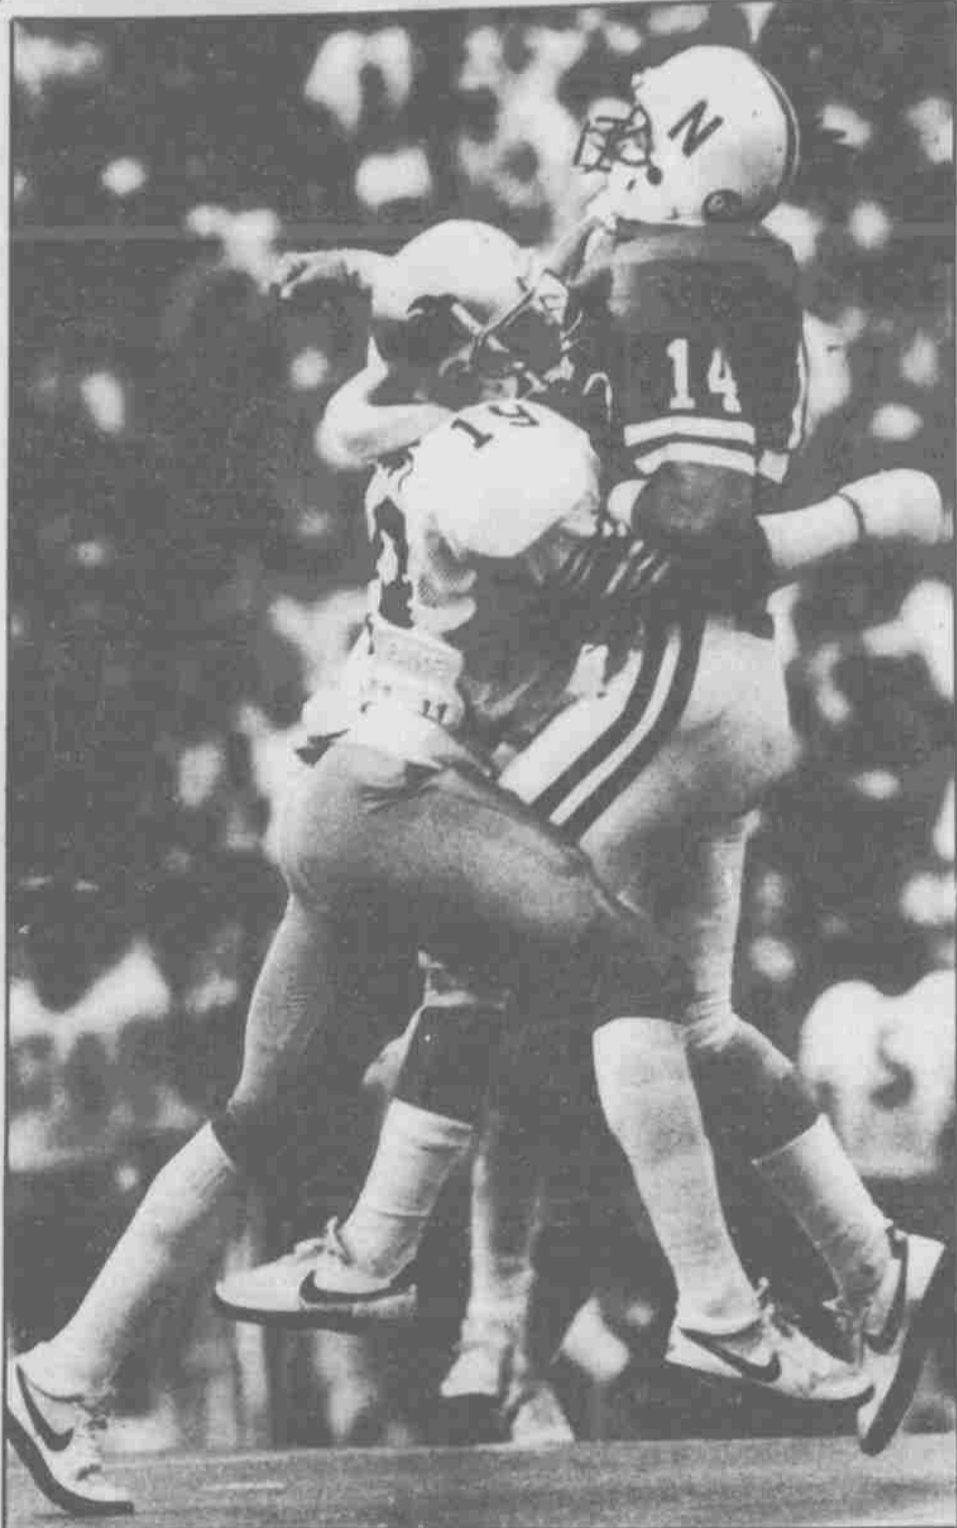

The availability of Clayton, Osborne said, is extremely important as quarterback Travis Turner re-injured his knee earlier this week and still is not 100 percent.

"Mac (Clayton) seemed all right earlier today but he got worse as practice went on," Osborne said. "The day before yesterday, (Tuesday) he was feeling really bad because he was having headaches and chills. We checked his blood count to see if he had a touch of the flu or a virus and he had an abnormal blood count."

"We'll check that (blood count) again today but hopefully he will be all right," Osborne said. "We're going to be in a situation where our top two quarterbacks could last the whole game or they may not last very long. We'll just have to wait and see."

Also missing Thursday's practice was right guard Stan Parker, who has been sidelined since the Missouri game, and defensive ends Brad Smith and Tony Holloway.

Smith, who suffered a broken hand earlier this season, is still recovering from an infection which developed under his cast. Holloway is still trying to recover from a knee bruise.

Dennis Watkins both made it through practice.

"Both (Tony) Holloway and (Brad) Smith won't play," Osborne said. "We'll start Gregg Reeves and Scott Tucker at defensive end but Brad Tyrer and Broderick Thomas will also play quite a bit."

DuBose, who was described by Osborne as "so-so," will definitely make the trip as will Watkins, who has been sidelined with a recurring Achilles tendon problem in his ankle.

"(Dennis) Watkins is still limping a little bit but he is better," Osborne said. "Overall, we're still fairly beat up injury wise, though."

Campus recreation to give away turkeys to fastest 'turkey trotters'

The Office of Campus Recreation is offering "pullet surprises" at one of their upcoming events: frozen turkeys. An intramural footrace called the "Turkey Trot" will be held on Nov. 10 and the frozen turkeys will be awarded to the winning men's, women's and co-rec teams.

According to Bill Goa, assistant intramural coordinator, giving out turkeys is an idea "about as old as running itself." Many schools have turkey trots, Goa said. The turkey trot usually attracts a lot of runners, Goa said. The running is the most important part, and the turkeys are secondary. The race starts at 1:30 p.m. at Oak Lake Park. It will be run on a relatively flat course and will cover about 2.5 miles. For more information about this and other intramural activities, contact the Office of Campus Recreation.

Iowa, Auburn, FSU picked to win; Upset Special: Illini over Michigan

By Herschel Nissenson
The Associated Press

This weekend's college football schedule lists three games between members of the Associated Press Top Twenty. And if the recent baseball season is any indication, you've got to like No. 1 Iowa over No. 8 Ohio State, No. 6 Auburn over No. 2 Florida and No. 10 Florida State over No. 11 Miami, Fla.

Iowa, Auburn and Florida State all have a Kansas City connection and it remains to be seen if the Royals' success last weekend will rub off on the football teams this weekend.

Iowa (favored by 1 1/2) at Ohio State: Royals catcher Jim Sundberg was a member of the 1971 Iowa baseball team that won the Big Ten championship . . . Iowa 24-21.

Florida at Auburn (by 2): KC pitcher Joe Bechwith set Southeastern Conference records for victories (31) and innings pitched (338) in his four-year career at Auburn. In the 1976 opener, he pitched a no-hitter against the University of Houston, the first no-hitter by an Auburn pitcher in 28 years. In addition, his father, Bill, is the school's ticket manager . . . Auburn 21-17.

Miami at Florida State (by 1/2): Royals Manager Dick Howser was an All-American shortstop at Florida State and helped the Seminoles reach the College World Series in 1957. As a sophomore in 1956, he set the school record with a .422 batting average. In 1979, he coached FSU to a 42-16 record and a berth in the NCAA Eastern Regional . . . Florida State 35-31.

The Royals' connection may be as good as any other way of forecasting football games. Last week's prediction record was 37 right, 12 wrong and one tie for a percentage of .755; for the year, 287-111-10—.721. Against the point spread, last week's score was 21-19-1—

.525; for the year, 141-151-5—.483. Boston College at No. 3 Penn State (by 14): Penn State 24-14. No. 4 Michigan (by 5 1/2) at Illinois: Upset Special of the Week . . . Illinois 21-14. No. 5 Nebraska (by 33) at Kansas State: Nebraska 38-7. San Diego State at No. 7 Air Force (by 18): Air Force 31-17. Kansas at No. 9 Oklahoma (by 11): Oklahoma 27-17. No. 12 Oklahoma State (by 7) at Colorado: Oklahoma State 24-14. No. 14 Arkansas (by 21) at Rice: Arkansas 38-14. No. 16 LSU (by 7) at Mississippi: LSU 27-13. Wyoming at No. 17 Brigham Young (by 28): BYU 45-14. Tulane at No. 18 Georgia (by 21 1/2): Georgia 35-7. Rutgers at No. 19 Tennessee (by 11): Tennessee 30-10. No. 20 Southern Methodist (by 1) at Texas A&M: Texas A&M 24-17.
