Group to perform medieval music

The UNL Collegium Musicum will give its fall concert under the direction of Priscilla Parson, UNL professor of strings, at 8 p.m. today at St. Mark's on the Campus, 1309 R St.

Patrick Mason, a doctoral candidate of musical arts in the School of Music, will direct the vocal groups in liturgical chants and English consort songs with viol accompaniment.

Pattie West, also a doctoral candidate of musical arts, will direct the recorder consort.

Collegium Musicum is the name given to musical associations formed by amateurs to perform serious music. The collegium concept, begun in Germany in 1660 and brought to the New World in 1744 by the Moravians of Bethlehem, Pa., has become connected with universities and is devoted to cultivating medieval, renaissance and baroque music.

UNL has been given reproductions of several early instruments, including a viol, portativ organ, rebec, krumphorns, recorders and various percussion instruments.

ments.

The UNL Collegium is made up of graduate and undergraduate students, graduates of the School of Music and faculty members.

More FRISBEE than music

On the lighter side, the title track, is a very sensual song, and it is doing very nicely on the charts. "Emotion Triangle" is a beautiful ballad and Newton-John does use her voice, a little bit.

"Culture Shock" is a little sexual ditty about Olivia's problem of liking to sleep with two men.

"I know it's unconventional, radical, unpractical/why can't the three of us live together?/It's a culture shock, but it's the only chance we've got/Tell me, why can't the three of us live together? Yeahhhhh." Tramp.

"The Right Moment" is a wonderful ballad, and a great way to end a rather sad album. But keep in mind, if you want some very sexy photos of Olivia wearing lots and lots of makeup, buy this album. Think of the disc inside as a FRISBEE.
