Try it, it might even turn out to be fun

The UPC foreign film committee has tried to offer a variety of internationally respected films. I've made it to one, "Women in Flames," and it offered some intensity and food for thought the ultimate composite of synthesizer arias and Smith's caterwauling. It immortalizes death and life after midnight.

Cure album shows new versatility

"Heaven, give me a sign/Pleasure fills up my dreams/And I love it/Like a baby screams."

Several times throughout this cut Smith wails "Strike me dead!" This that I didn't get from "Family Vacation" or "Commando."

The Sheldon Art Gallery is constantly showing nationally acclaimed works.

The Kimball performance series has offered some incredible programs this year ranging from jazz and ballet to strange obsession with death has always been present in The Cure's lyrical acumen. This is especially true of "A Night Like This," with a line that says: "Your trust is the most gorgeous thing I've ever cut in this world."

The most provocative thing about The Cure is their ability to chronicle expressions of the decay and rot of human emotion with as much veracity and force as the poetry of Edgar Allan Poe and Sylvia Plath.

"The Head on the Door" shows a new versatility for The Cure with its handful of resonant songs, while still displaying the abstract mystery of their earlier works.

Also in Kimball, sometimes several times a week, student recitals or concerts by UNL professors are held that rival much of the classical music you will hear anywhere.

UNL Theatre has offered two good and one not-so-good production this semester, but all have provided live theater, an experience that you should make a part of your entertainment lives. The theater closes the fall season with the classic "A Christmas Carol."

Also, the Nebraska Directors Theatre has offered some fine theatrical performances at reasonable prices.

What I'm saying here is that there has been no excuse this semester to sit around in your dormitory, apartment, or house and complain of nothing to do.

Most of the entertainment does more than just entertain — often it will give pause for thought as well. Live theater, for instance, is entertainment that often strives to make the audience feel, to think and to grow. Not a bad package for something that only costs a few dollars.

Don't be afraid to try it if all you do is sit in front of the TV and consider "Miami Vice" your major cultural experience. But don't try it alone. The best part of so-called "cultural" entertainment is discussing it, clarifying it, and adapting it into your world view.

Many people are turned off by entertainment that carries any kind of "cultural" label on it, but believe me, if it weren't entertaining first, the other aspects of it would not go over.

To grow requires risk and openness. Growth should be a part of your college experience. Take a risk and try something cultural. Who knows, you just might be entertained.

And as always, we in the entertainment section welcome your cards and letters about our work, or any of the local entertainment happenings. We've gotten several letters this semester, (most have been printable), but no cards. I like cards. Just send one to say "hi." It gets lonely around here sometimes.
