Thousands cheer Felix

ROYKO from Page 4

Felix, I'm a reporter. Why did you do it?
 "Gee, you're the first one to ask me that. The neighbors don't even know I did it."

Why did you do it?
 "Somebody had to. Somebody does it nearly every game. So I figured I would do it. Me and my pal, Mike. He has relatives in Chicago and he was hoping they'd see him."

What happened to Mike?
 "I dunno. I guess he just sat there."
 How did it feel?
 "At first it felt weird. I thought: 'Gee, what am I doing?' Then, when those thousands of people started cheering me, it felt pretty good."

"I was moving along pretty good. I thought I'd go all the way from one end zone to another. Those cops weren't even gaining on me."
 "When I went by the Rams huddle, the players turned and looked at me and some of them smiled. I guess they were happy because they were winning."

"Just as I was getting to the Bears' huddle, one of the cops threw a nightstick. That's when I made my mistake. I turned my head to look at the nightstick, and Ditka hit me with a blind-side block."
 Did he punch you?
 "No. If he had punched me, he would have killed me. I'm only 145 pounds. He just bumped me with his shoulder in my face."

Did it hurt?
 "Yes. My nose still hurts. And my head. But he didn't knock me out. Just down."

Ditka says he is sorry.
 "I'm not mad at him. I guess it was something he had to do. Just like me running."

Do you regret it?
 "It was a good experience."
 Will you do it again?
 "I don't know. I'll have to give it some thought. Would you do me a favor?"

What?
 "If you write something, would you send me a copy of the paper? I'm a glory hound at heart."
