

NU secondary coach quits

By Chuck Green
Senior Reporter

Bob Thornton, Nebraska's defensive secondary football coach, announced his resignation Saturday in Lincoln.

Thornton, who started at safety for Bob Devaney in 1972 and for Tom Osborne in 1973, said he is leaving his coaching job to pursue private business opportunities.

"I've considered it for some time," Thornton said.

Thornton said he has two, possibly three different offers, including one in Wyoming, but he declined to specify what they are.

"I don't really want to mention any names at this point because I still have some things to look into," Thornton said.

Members of Nebraska's defensive secondary expressed surprise at Thornton's resignation.

"I had no idea he was leaving," junior cornerback Mike Carl said. "It really came as a shock to me. I'm very disappointed that he's leaving. I really liked him."

Other players also were surprised at Thornton's decision to resign. Freshman defensive back Marvin Sanders said he had heard rumors in the locker room all week, but didn't know whether to believe them.

"I tried to talk to Coach Thornton Wednesday, but nobody could tell me where he was," Sanders said. "Then Coach (Tom) Osborne told us in the field house Friday afternoon. He didn't want to make it sound like it was a big thing."

Thornton came to Nebraska after coaching at Nebraska Wesleyan, Western Illinois and Army. Before playing at Nebraska in 1972 and 1973, Thornton played at Harbor Junior College in California. After his Cornhusker career, Thornton tried out with the NFL's Washington Redskins.

Thornton said a major reason for his retirement is his family. Thornton and his wife, Kathy, have a daughter, Amy, and a son, Aaron.

"I'd just like to spend more time with them," he said.

Osborne said Sunday that he has no one in particular in mind to replace Thornton. He said the replacement will come through the affirmative action procedure, but he would not mention specific names.

Carl said he is "a little concerned" about who would be named to replace Thornton.

"You never know what might happen," Carl said. "You might get someone in there who will bring in new ideas and maybe even change certain techniques."
