NCAA championship meet overshadowed by protest

By Geoff Goodwin
Staff Reporter

After Friday night's competition in the NCAA men's gymnastics championship Coach Francis Allen said he had no complaints about the judges. By Saturday afternoon he had changed his mind.

A controversy over the scoring kept the team championship in doubt for almost 45 minutes Saturday afternoon, but when the smoke finally cleared, Arizona State had edged Nebraska 283.90 to 283.60. Stanford finished third with 279.50.

Arizona State's marginal victory was the result of Nebraska's penalty of three-tenths of one point for making too many inquiries about the scoring.

NCAA rules, which took effect for the first time this year, let coaches protest up to three decisions by the judges. After that, a team is penalized three-tenths of a point every inquiry they make that isn't upheld.

Nebraska's first inquiry came early in the meet on a parallel bars score. That protest was denied.

The Cornhuskers later protested high bar scores recorded by Terry Gillespie, Kevin Davis and Tom Schlesinger. All the protests involved a "D"-move, which is the difficulty of a move required in the routine.

Allen said the high bar judge originally said the "D"-move being discussed didn't exist.

"We had to get a rule book to show them the move was there," Allen said. "Whoever was doing high bar didn't know what he was doing."

The judges actually upheld the inquiry on Davis' score, but disallowed the other two protests.

Because of the similarity in the three routines, Allen said he thought they would all be approved if one was.

The controversy overshadowed one of the most exciting championship meets in recent years.

Going into the final rotation, Nebraska had what looked like an insurmountable lead of 1.45. But Arizona State was spectacular on the high bar, accumulating a score of 48.15, including scores of 9.8 and 9.9 by twins Dennis and Dan Hayden.

Allen said it was disappointing to finish second for the second consecutive year.

"It's a fact," he said, "but we're still able to put pressure on them. It's better than finishing third."

Allen said some changes would be made the next time the meet is held in Lincoln.

"Next time we're going to sell something round and hard to throw at the judges," he said.

"Like oranges?" someone asked. "No, they're not hard enough," Allen replied.

Meanwhile, Nebraska got 46.60 on the vault.

"I thought we had the meet, going into the vault," Allen said. "I thought all we needed was to have five guys land on their feet. Who cares about the sixth?"

Five Huskers did land on their feet but the sixth — Wes Suter didn't. He stumbled on his landing and scored 8.95.

Arizona State coach Don Robinson said his team pointed for the championship all season.

"We trained for this meet," he said. "When we thought we were in a lot of trouble we still kept our enthusiasm. We never gave up."

Robinson said it probably was an advantage for his team to be on the high bar going into the last rotation.

"We're excellent performers on the high bar," he said. "It gave us confidence."

Robinson said Dan Hayden, who uses a somersault catch in his high bar routine, is the only gymnast in the world who uses it.

First Husker spring scrimmage 'good and bad,' Osborne says

By Chuck Green
Senior Reporter

Coach Tom Osborne described Nebraska's first major spring football scrimmage Saturday as "good and bad."

"It was the usual kind of deal," Osborne said of the scrimmage. "There was some good and bad. I think the effort was good. Offensively, we moved the ball at times and at other times we didn't. It wasn't either the offense or the defense that was clearly dominant."

Osborne said he was pleased with the team's effort, considering the Cornhuskers have practiced for only one week.

The Huskers worked heavily Saturday on the passing game, one of their main improvement goals this spring. Husker quarterbacks threw 24 times in the scrimmage, completing nine passes for 127 yards. Two passes, however, were intercepted by Husker defensive backs.

Steve Taylor, who will be a sophomore in the fall, completed three of nine passes for 29 yards. He led all rushers with 59 yards on seven carries.

McCathorn Clayton, last season's starting quarterback, completed one of five passes for 39 yards and threw one interception. Clayton, who will be a junior, rushed 10 times for 32 yards Saturday.

Clete Blakeman, the second-team quarterback, completed three passes for 38 yards and had one pass intercepted by cornerback Brian Davis.

Osborne said the Huskers' defensive secondary showed "more aggressiveness" in the scrimmage than it had earlier in the week.

"Some guys came up hitting pretty well," he said. "(Dante) Wiley looks like he might be a factor back there. He made some mistakes, but he has the ability to come up and make the tackle, and we're really looking for guys who can make things happen."

Wiley, a safety in his first season at Nebraska after transferring from Pittsburgh, has opened coaches' eyes after only six days of spring practice including the eyes of Charlie McBride, Nebraska's defensive coordinator.

"He missed some check calls in the secondary and cost us three big plays today," McBride said of Wiley. "It's bad that he missed those check calls in the secondary, but it's good that he sees them. Those are things that he won't do again."

The top units scored three touchdowns and two field goals during the first half of the scrimmage. Fullback Sam Schmidt scored on a 36-yard run, while Dave Clare scored on runs of 1 and 5 yards.

Schmidt finished the scrimmage with 57 yards on six carries. Clare produced 31 yards on seven carries.

The field goals were by Dale Klein from 28 yards and Chris Drennan from 34 yards. Klein, who missed a 46-yard attempt, also kicked two extra points. Craig Schnitzler also kicked an extra point.

The most negative aspect of Saturday's scrimmage was the injury list growing longer.

"You expect this situation when you've been practicing at it three or four weeks," Osborne said, "but we've only had five practices, and we've already got an awful lot of people injured."

John Custard, a defensive back, dislocated a shoulder and Tye Doll, a defensive tackle, injured his right knee.

Others added to the injury list: Davis (bruised quadriceps), linebackers Steve Forch (knee) and Kevin Parsons (hamstring), split end Robb Schnitzler (groin) and offensive tackle Tom Welter (shin).

"IT IS VERY IMPORTANT TO ME TO HAVE MY CONTACT LENSES FITTED PROPERLY."

Like most people, I'm on the go a lot. I tried contact lenses a few years ago and was never really happy. Wearing contacts helped my vision but they became a hassle because of the mild discomfort and occasional fuzzy vision.

I asked several of my friends who wear contacts to recommend a specialist, and most of them recommended Dr. Powell at the International Contact Lens Clinic.

I went to their clinic for a no charge consultation to talk about new contact lenses. Their office offers complete contact lens services and complete optical services including:

- thorough examination, individual fitting, and close supervision
- curbside parking, convenient central Lincoln location
- appointments available lunch hours, and Saturdays
- eight week trial program for
 - close observation of comfort and eye health
 - lens strength or fitting modification if indicated
 - no charge for damaged lenses
- spare glasses, sunglasses and special solutions for sensitive eyes
- a continuing care program — future upgrading of contact lenses as scientific progress is made.

I decided to have them fit my eyes, and I was very comfortable with their professional approach, their fees, and their thoroughness.

Everyone in their office helped me become a successful wearer. I consider their office outstanding, and I recommend them to all my friends.
