Members of Classical Ragas, Jeffrey Rodgers, Davis Tarsoff and Sreemof Roy, play the drums, sarod and sitar for India Night, put on by the India Student Association.

Culture sampled at India Night

About 300 people sampled yogurt-covered lentil (dahi vada) patties and garbanzo beans (alu dam) as they learned about Indian culture Sunday night at the 15th annual India Night in the Nebraska Union.

Association President Vijay Tatkar called the event a "unifying force" for Indian faculty, students and the Lincoln community.

The evening's events, which were sponsored by the India Association, included a slide show, a fashion show in which 12 children modeled native dress from various parts of India, a recital of the "sarod," a classical wooden instrument that was the forerunner of the lute, a skit and a display of handicrafts of jade, wood, leather, ivory and cotton batiks.

Although the Indian student population at UNL has declined within the last several years, India Night has continued to be a major event, said Peter Levitov, director of International Educational Services.

The night was designed to provide a "representative sampling of the culture of a diverse country where 15 languages and 56 dialects are spoken," Tatkar said.
