Glamour winner meets Columbia law dean

A UNL senior is one of the top 10 college women named by Glamour magazine this year.

As one of the Top 10 College Women in the Nation winners, Mary Marcy, 22, received a trip to New York City and a monetary prize. The award is given on the basis of academic merit, extra-curricular activities and leadership. Glamour has given the award to 10 women every year for 30 years.

As part of the award, Marcy was flown to New York City to talk with women leaders from various professions. Marcy could choose the woman she wanted to meet. Glamour arranged a meeting for her with Barbara Black, the first female dean of an Ivy League law school. Black became Dean of the Law College at Columbia University in December 1985. Marcy and Black talked for three hours. She said she had Black's undivided attention and was impressed with Black's success in balancing a family and children with a professional life.

Marcy will graduate in May with degrees in political science and speech communication and minors in philosophy and sociology. She said she is considering attending graduate school for either public or social policy, possibly at the London School of Economics and Political Science. Marcy is a candidate for a Degree with High Distinction.

Marcy's experiences include serving as chairwoman on the University Judicial/Appeals Board, chairwoman for the Equal Opportunity Coalition and president of the Nebraska Union Board. She was an intern to Nebraska State Sen. Sandra K. Scofield earlier this year.

Marcy said her role models on campus include Lou Ann Krager, a doctoral candidate in educational psychology, and Sara Boatman, director of Campus Activities and Programs.

Boatman said she had talked to officials from Glamour magazine who were impressed with Marcy's long-term impact on campus. Marcy identified a location for the Culture Center and was concerned with minority students during her long record of campus leadership, Boatman said.

Marcy is a good example of the well-rounded person a liberal arts education can shape, Boatman said. She said she foresees Marcy making an impact on the world and predicts she will rise to a high position as a U.S. senator or a high level judge.

Mary Marcy, UNL senior, is one of the Top Ten College Women in the Nation, having been selected by Glamour magazine in July.
