Cast saves 'Fresno'

By Chris McCubbin
Senior Reporter

"Fresno," starring Carol Burnett.

I don't have statistics for this or anything, but CBS's comedy mini-series "Fresno" has my vote as the most-hyped TV event of the year. Does it live up to its hype? Nope, but it's not bad.

Tube Talk

Of course, it would be difficult for anything to live up to the kind of hype "Fresno" got, because the ad campaign was just so darn funny — much, much funnier than the TV show itself. The ads were full of little games like "Only something this big can be this big!"

and "She wanted too much, too much!!" "Fresno" is a six-hour send-up of prime-time soap operas of the "Dallas"-clone sort. The cast is more than mildly remarkable; Carol Burnett, Dabney Coleman, Terri Garr and Gregory Harrison all have starring roles. The cast saves this show; lesser comedic talents would have fallen flat on most of the lines that get laughs in the rather lame script.

The plot, for what it's worth, is a struggle between rival raisin-growing dynasties in northern California.

"Fresno" is very low-key deadpan parody, which is probably the way to go when you're trying to roast something as inherently stupid as part-time soaps. The humor is not the kind to be easily reduced to one-line gags that can be repeated to your buddies before Spanish 102 the next morning. Most of the humor takes an embarrassingly familiar, dumb soap situation and slowly develops the dumbness to the point of absurdity. The funniest scene in the first episode, a seduction scene between Talon Kensington (Garr) and Torch (Harrison), the super-hunk without a past or a shirt is humor of this sort.

"Fresno" is pretty good TV comedy, although I'm not convinced that it's really any funnier in the final analysis than the "dramas" it's sending up. Still, anyone who either really loves or really hates nighttime soaps (and that's just about everyone) probably will get some kind of kick out of "Fresno."

"Fresno's" last two episodes air tonight at 7:30 p.m. and tomorrow at 7 p.m.
