

KSU defeats NU

By The Associated Press

MANHATTAN, Kan. — Junior forward Norris Coleman celebrated his return to the Kansas State starting lineup by scoring 23 points Saturday to lead the Wildcats past Nebraska 114-82 in the Big Eight season opener for both teams.

Kansas State, 10-3 overall, made 13 of 17 three-point attempts in scoring its most points ever.

Coleman, the Big Eight Newcomer of the Year and the highest scoring freshman in the country last season, sat out a 14-game suspension on orders from the NCAA for a deficient high-school grade point average. Coleman missed four of his first five shots after entering the game with 16:26 left in the first half.

Will Scott made five of six three-point attempts for the Wildcats and finished with 19 points.

Kansas State hit its first five three-pointers in the first half and its first six in the second half.

The Wildcats had a 9-2 lead when Coleman entered the game, and led 53-37 at halftime. The Wildcats outscored Nebraska 11-2 in approximately 4:50 of the second half to lead 79-44.

Derriek Vick and Henry Buchanan scored 15 points for the Cornhuskers, who fell to 10-4 overall.

Kansas State coach Lon Kruger said it didn't take much to get the Wildcats prepared for their game against Nebraska.

"The last couple days in practices we've had to keep a rein on them," Kruger said. "They were ready and eager. We didn't have to say anything to get them ready."

"There was a stretch where we didn't miss," Kruger said. "Points add up pretty quickly when you do that."

Nebraska coach Danny Nee offered a different perspective on the game.

"Kansas State did not allow Nebraska to do anything," Nee said. "Any time Nebraska settled in to do anything we wanted to do, Kansas State had the answer."

LSU coach retires

NEW ORLEANS — The shoulder ride Louisiana State football coach Bill Arnsparger received after the Tigers' 30-15 loss to Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl represented the end of a coaching career that spanned 36 years.

Arnsparger, who announced earlier he would retire from coaching following LSU's match-up with Nebraska in order to become the athletic director at Florida, said he didn't treat the 53rd annual New Year's Day contest as anything special.

Arnsparger said the only special pre-game element he added to his pep talk was to tell all of the Tiger players he would miss them.

"Each one of us will be judged on what we do here," Arnsparger told his players. "We will all be measured."

Arnsparger said he was somewhat disappointed to close out his lengthy coaching career with a loss to the No. 4-ranked Cornhuskers.

Louisiana State, which entered the game a 4 1/2-point underdog, saw its early 7-0 lead slip away when Nebraska tallied 10 points in the second quarter and then added 20 second-half points to bring the game to its final outcome.

"It's disappointing when you work hard and don't do something well," Arnsparger said.

Louisiana State assistant coach Mike Archer said he felt bad for Arnsparger because Tiger fans would have a tendency to remember LSU's loss to Nebraska rather than think about the Southeastern Conference title or the 26-8-2 record LSU compiled under Arnsparger.

Archer, who was named by LSU's Board of Supervisors to succeed Arnsparger as the Tigers' coach, said it would have been nice to send the former defensive coordinator for the NFL's Miami Dolphins off with a victory.

"People remember you by what you do last," Archer said. "That's unfortunate."

Archer said he wasn't surprised that Arnsparger chose not to play up his last game as a coach.

Coming into the contest, Archer said Arnsparger told the tigers about the opportunity to win 10 games and thanked the LSU players for the three years he was coach.

"He's not going to boast," Archer said. "That was his approach."

Tiger noseguard Henry Thomas said entering the contest LSU's 17 seniors were motivated more because they all wanted to send Arnsparger away with a victory.

But after seeing the Tigers drop to 9-3, Thomas vented his frustrations by saying he was a better noseguard than Nebraska All-American Danny Noonan.

"I don't think he (Noonan) has the foot and hand speed I have," Thomas told the Daily Nebraskan. "He doesn't have the total understanding of the game."

Thomas also said he was puzzled by the Sugar Bowl's selection of both him and Noonan to the defensive players of the game team.

"I was just trying to figure out what he did," Thomas said.

Louisiana State wide receiver Wendell Davis said he wasn't surprised by Thomas's post-game comments because both sides had been exchanging words almost since the Huskers' arrival in New Orleans.

Throughout the game, Davis said both teams were calling each other names.

"We got caught up in that," Davis, an All-American, said. "We should have backed away from that."

Both Davis and LSU senior Toby Caston said the Tigers wanted to win the game first for themselves and then for Arnsparger.

When it became apparent that the contest was well in Nebraska's favor, Caston said, he began to feel frustrated.

"That was the most frustrating game of my career," Caston said.

Louisiana State quarterback Tommy Hodson said he also felt frustrated throughout the contest because Nebraska was able to contain the Tigers' dangerous passing attack.

Hodson, whose lone touchdown pass of the contest came last in the fourth quarter against Nebraska's second-team defense, said Nebraska used "basic coverage with a lot of variations" to smother LSU's passing game.

"I looked for guys, (receivers), but nobody was really open," Hodson said. "They came out and were very physical."
