Even though you'll be twenty on Sunday, you're still younger than springtime. Let's celebrate by closing our eyes to situations we do not wish to acknowledge. Maybe we could hijack the midnight choo-choo to Alabama! At any rate, don't be fussy and furin about this. We'll hear something through the grapevine. Have a gness one.

DAVID STUDMUFFIN:
Saw you last week. Always a pleasure. Think you're hot. Way hot. You gave me your sweatshirt. I accepted it was a gift. I loved it. It was your birthday. You wanted dinner. We cracked jokes. You laughed. You cracked jokes. We pretended to laugh. As always. You brought ice-cream. We kept you heat. I went to bed. Without you. Thanks. For nothing. Next week, let's celebrate celibacy. And your birthday. At Fat Jack's. In Iowa. It'll be a night on the town. Or gas. In fact, plan on us. Bring John. We hate odd numbers.

It's the damnest thing! We are vastly approaching the fourth month of a very adventurous relationship which has consisted of such things as beagle licks, quality verbal exchanges (your such a sh--) and spotlight in the parking lot. By the way, you're very special to me and I'm sure you feel the same.
